COURT TO RULE LATER ON PLEA IN MYERS CASE

The Adams County court this morning announced it will hand down an order later to distribute the approximately $2,500,000 estate of Robert C. Myers, late of Conewago Twp.

The court had before it this morning the first and partial account of Edna P. Myers, William W. Hafer, and the First National Bank and Trust Company of Hanover, executors of the estate of the late Mr. Myers.

At the same time, a hearing was scheduled to be held today on the petition of the widow, Mrs. Edna Myers, to grant distribution of the estate in kind to her at the present time, rather than place the proceeds in a trust with the bank for Mrs. Myers' benefit as provided in the will. The will permits her to dispose of the entire trust.

HEARING NOT HELD

A scheduled hearing on the petition was not held. The court merely announced that it would hand down an order later in the matter.

Argument was heard on the "petition for citation to compel delivery of certain stock to decedent's personal representative in the estate of J. Nelson McDonald, late of Oxford Twp." The matter pertains to a number of shares of stock owned by Mr. McDonald which are in the possession of a former nurse who claims they were given to her by Mr. McDonald before his death. The argument between opposing counsel, Attorneys Eugene R. Hartman and Daniel E. Teeter, this morning pertained to various decisions that have been given by other courts in similar matters where there is a problem of proof of gift.

George W. Kegriss, Carlisle; Roy F. Flory, R. 2; Dean Shaner, Carlisle St., and Ray E. Mihlimes, Biglerville R. 2, were all placed on parole; Kegriss for six months and the remainder for one-year periods, after having served some time in jail. Flory was in jail on a charge of drag racing, Shaner and Mihlimes for forgery and conspiracy, and Kegriss for contempt of court.

FIRST SNOW OF SEASON; UP TO 4 IN.

The heaviest November snowfall here in six years blanketed Adams County along with much of the east Sunday night and brought out the state Highway Department cinder crews and snow plows for the first time this season.

The snow reached a depth of three inches here but ranged up to four inches in some parts of the county. Snow plows went to work about 1 a.m. today on Mt. Newman on the Lincoln Highway. Eleven cinder crews including 35 men went to work at 1 o'clock this morning after snow had begun falling shortly after 10:30 o'clock Sunday night.

Highway Maintenance Superintendent Clyde O. Garber said his crews were alerted Sunday by weather forecasts and were ready when the first white stuff of the winter started to fall. The cinders and chemicals were used chiefly on Route 15 north and Route 30 west, he said.

AHEAD OF LAST NOV.

It was the first measurable snow here since the winter of 1960-61 signed off after setting an all-time record of 69.2 inches of snow with a final snowfall of four inches on April 13.

Today's snow was the heaviest experienced in any November in Gettysburg since 1955. The last "real big" November snow here was in 1938 when a total of 10 inches fell.

Last year's first measurable snow came the night of November 6 but amounted to only a half inch but it started off the record-setting winter that saw 15.5 inches of snow in December. There had been flurries in late October last.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A terror-filled story indicating that Capt. Julian Harvey slaughtered the passengers of the ketch Bluebelle has been told to the Coast Guard by the lone survivor, Terry Jo Duperrault, 11, of Green Bay, Wis.

Well before the Bluebelle went down in Bahamas waters Nov. 11 with the loss of five lives, Terry Jo said she saw the bodies of her mother and brother on the floor of the main cabin and saw blood all over the cabin and the main deck.

SKIPPER SUICIDES

Harvey, who killed himself last Friday after learning that Terry Jo had survived, took the ship's dinghy and main life raft and jumped overboard, leaving her stranded on the deck, she said.

Terry's story was disclosed by the Coast Guard at a news conference today. The girl was interviewed Sunday by FBI agents and Coast Guard investigators in a hospital room where she is recovering from an ordeal of 3½ days on a tiny raft bouncing through troubled seas.

Capt. R. F. Barber, district officer in charge of marine investigations, said the standard procedure would be to refer the case to the Justice Department but since "the criminal negligence lies with a deceased person," it is not now known what will be done.

MAST DIDN'T BREAK

Terry Jo's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Duperrault; her brother, Brian, 14; and the captain's wife, Mary Harvey, apparently went down with the ship. The body of Terry Jo's sister, Renee, 7, was found in the dinghy in which Harvey escaped.

Kennedy And Adenauer Confer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer open a series of policy conferences today in an effort to agree on a basis for Western negotiation with the Soviet Union to settle the Berlin dispute.

Kennedy was reported hopeful that Adenauer would accept a flexible approach, allowing for some concessions by the West, if the Soviet Union is willing to respect "vital interests" of the Western powers in West Berlin.

The West German chancellor arrived here Sunday calling for cooperation among the Allies and predicting victory for "the peace-loving nations" in the cold war.

He told Secretary of State Dean Rusk who met his plane at Andrews Air Force Base that he is "convinced the peace-loving nations will win."

This is the 85-year-old German leader's second visit since Kennedy took office in January. He was here in April for a get-acquainted meeting. He told Rusk, "My country is firmly on your side."

Dirksen Speaks At Exercise Observing 98th Birthday Of Lincoln's Address In 1863

GAR LAUDED AT REMEMBRANCE DAY EXERCISE

"The Grand Army of the Republic rose undauntedly to its responsibility. As we ponder their sacrifices and accomplishments, let us resolve that we will not fail them," Maj. Gen. George J. Richards said Saturday afternoon at the fifth annual Remembrance Day program held in the Visitors' Center on the battlefield.

The Camp Hill officer, who was the army's first comptroller, told the 400 present, "For those of us who have inherited from the Boys in Blue their mission to preserve, protect and defend the Union and for the Boys in Blue themselves, I wish to express our gratitude to you and your organizations, the allied orders of the GAR, for your thoughtfulness and patriotism in coming from far and near to perpetuate the memory of those grand soldiers and the principles for which they fought; and to you citizens of Gettysburg who throughout the year at such sacrifice decorate the graves and preserve the landmarks and memories of the great battle fought here, I express my sincerest thanks."

REMEMBERS GAR

"Many of us remember the Boys in Blue personally, in the prime of their lives in the late 1800s and the early years of this century, when they jauntily and with spirit participated in patriotic celebrations and parades. They were our foremost citizens. As a boy I never failed to attend their Memorial Day parades and ceremonies in the cemetery. It was a wonderful inspiration. Others of you may

Text Of Senator Dirksen's Address Here On Sunday

The following is the complete text of Senator Everett M. Dirksen's address delivered in the Gettysburg National Cemetery Sunday afternoon commemorating the 98th anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address:

"Four score and eighteen years ago this day, the man from Illinois stood in this place, the destiny of a nation upon his shoulders and the cares of conflict graven upon his face.

"From thousands of patriot graves, men who had fallen beneath a July sun were speaking to him. From his anguished soul he was trying to speak to and for them.

"He was uneasy. In ink and pencil he drafted and redrafted the remarks which he was invited to make. His mind struggled to embody in few words a message suited to the occasion, setting forth the reason for the conflict, the duty still at hand, and the hope for the future. Yet, out of deep humility, he was impelled to say that it was not the words of the living which would be noted and remembered but only the deeds of heroes who had fallen here for the Union.

"Each generation added to the inheritance which it received from those who had gone before, enriched it and transmitted it to those who were to follow. They dug the wells and planted the fields and vineyards from which those who came after were refreshed; they built the roads by which others traveled; they built the railroads by which people and things were transported; they tilled the soil from which came food and subsistence; they founded the industries where men worked; they gave the law for commerce and conduct and built the schools by which culture, classics and communication might become an open book to all. This they did—those generations who marched before—for our legacy and our trusteeship.

U. S. Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois, standing where another man from Illinois, Abraham Lincoln, stood 98 years ago in the National Cemetery here Sunday afternoon said, "Ours is a timid generation in which the fallout shelter, from which the stars of hope and courage cannot be seen, has become the symbol of our fears and misgivings."

He said that Lincoln in his address at the dedication of the Gettysburg National Cemetery in 1863 asked the "deathless question which continues to roll down time's corridor with each generation, 'Can a nation so conceived and so dedicated long endure?'"

The senator spoke at a program arranged by the Lincoln Fellowship of Pennsylvania and the Sons of Union Veterans. A platform had been erected by National Park workmen near the base of the Soldiers National Monument in the cemetery.

Attorney Donald P. McPherson Jr., interstate commerce commissioner and member of Camp 112 of the SUV, was the master of ceremonies. The latter members presented the national colors of the SUV.

Taps was sounded by Bruce T. Crandall, bugler of the Army ROTC contingent.

A parade from Lincoln Square preceded the exercises.

The Gettysburg Senior High School band, the Army Reserve Drum and Bugle Corps and the Sixth Battalion Field Music provided the music for the parade. Lt. Col. John H. Eddy, professor of military science and tactics at Gettysburg College, was parade marshal assisted by Col. LeRoy Stoudt of the Sons of Veterans Reserve; Maj. William Storms of the Air Force ROTC, Capt. Donald E. Doersom of the Pennsylvania National Guard and Capt. Howard L. Dissinger of the Sons of Veterans Reserve.

A number of wives of the Skirmishers and SUV members appeared in 1863 costume.

Mrs. Annie Cunningham, 8, Washington St., is observing her 94th birthday today.

INJURED IN HIS SECOND CRASH IN 20 MINUTES

Douglas Lewis Mosten, 26, Harrisburg, was removed to the Warner Hospital Sunday afternoon after he had been, according to state police, in two accidents on the Gettysburg-Harrisburg Rd. within nine miles and 20 minutes of each other.

According to the officers, Mosten was driving north, one mile south of York Springs, on the Harrisburg Rd. at 1:55 o'clock Sunday afternoon when his car struck the rear of another northbound sedan operated by Charles Carlson, of Camp Hill. Damage to Carlson's car was estimated at $75 and to Mosten's auto, based on reports received later by the officers, at $125.

Police said Mosten stopped, gave his name and address to Carlson, then drove off.

Twenty minutes later, at 2:15 o'clock, state police were called to an accident 5 1/2 miles north of here. A southbound car had left the Harrisburg Rd. and smashed into a concrete culvert, demolishing the car which was valued at $1,200. Police found it to be Mosten, who apparently decided to travel south after the first accident.

Removed to the Warner Hospital in the Gettysburg firemen's ambulance, Mosten was admitted as a patient with a laceration of the nose. Police brought a charge of driving while under the influence against Mosten before Justice of the Peace Anna Thompson and notified the hospital to tell them when Mosten will be discharged so they can take him into custody on the charge.

year but the ground was not covered.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A heavy, wet snow fell across Pennsylvania today but ended before noon in virtually all parts of the state.

4-INCH FALL

An accumulation up to 4 inches was reported in Plymouth Meeting, parts of Delaware County and other Philadelphia suburbs. Philadelphia received about an inch.

In the Harrisburg area the accumulation also reached 4 inches.

The snow made roads tricky and driving hazardous for a time in some parts of the state but temperatures well up in the 30s kept it from freezing solidly.

Lansford in eastern Pennsylvania reported a little more than an inch while Pottstown had about one inch.

In western Pennsylvania from 1 to 3 inches fell in Indiana, Butler, Clarion and Armstrong counties. Cider crews were called out and kept all roads open.

No school closings were reported. Meanwhile, the Weather Bureau forecast clearing and cold weather tonight with a few snow flurries in the mountains.

Declares Nerves Cause Low Grades

LONDON (AP) — Nervous children who bite their nails and suck their thumbs are poorer students than those without these habits.

That is the conclusion of a 15-year study of 5,000 children, published by Dr. James Douglas and Dr. David Mulligan in the October issue of the Royal Society of Medicine's proceedings.

The experts discovered that the more nervous children were more prone to be absent from school, had more trouble passing examinations, worked less and obeyed less.

SAYS MEDICAL FIELD IS OPEN TO ALL WOMEN

By JOY MILLER

The Associated Press

For years the percentage has been about the same: only one in 20 medical school graduates is a woman.

That's just in this country. In Russia about 75 to 85 per cent of the medical profession are women; in India it's about 665 per cent; in some European countries around 33 per cent.

Why here? Is it a matter of patients rejecting women doctors?

Some men may never have outgrown a Victorian shyness about consulting women on the physical problems. But counterbalancing them are the women who feel more at ease talking with members of their own sex. And there's now the example of the President of the United States appointing a woman physician for the White House, Dr. Janet Travell.

DOORS AJAR
Dr. Claire Ryder, president of the American Medical Women's Association, says the problem boils down to the fact that for women seeking a medical education "the doors are ajar, but just ajar."

In spite of a looming shortage of doctors and worry over declining interest in the profession, most medical schools continue to accept only the same small percentage of women.

No one denies the significant contribution of women to medicine. Past president of the American Medical Association, Dr. Louis M. Orr, says women have proved "there is no such thing as the weaker sex" in the operating room, laboratory or in private practice.

But worry persists that women entering medical school will (1) find a doctor husband and drop out, (2) find any husband and drop out, (3) get an M.D. degree but relinquish practice in favor of marriage and motherhood.

LEAD SCHOLASTICALLY
Dr. Ryder, who points out that women lead scholastically in many medical school graduating classes, cites figures to show that nine out of 10 women doctors remain in the profession, the same rate as with men graduates.

As for marriage interfering with a medical career, Dr. Travell said recently that a successful woman doctor needs a good husband, good health and good help at home. She put a good husband first.

RACER KILLED ON 48TH LAP

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Al Keller, veteran driver from Green Acres, Fla., never collected his prizes Sunday for the fastest time trial at the Bobby Ball Memorial 100-mile auto race in Phoenix.

The 41-year-old Keller was killed on the 48th lap of the feature event when his yellow racer hit a rut on the north turn, spun out of control, rolled broadside in the air and landed upside down on a chain link fence. Two other wrecks marred the race, injuring two other drivers.

After the race was resumed, Parnelli Jones of Torrence, Calif., drove the Agajanian Willard Battery Special to victory. The race was halted because of darkness after 90 laps. Rodger Ward of Indianapolis finished second and Eddie Sachs of Coopersburg, Pa., was third.

"WORST TRACK"

"This is the worst track I've ever run on and I've run on a lot of them," Ward said later. "I probably said too much already, but I hate to see poor officiating. I think the race could be a good one if enough thought and preparation went into it."

Keller, who had been racing since 1938, first raced at the Indianapolis 500 in 1955 when he was involved in a four-car wreck in which Bill Yukovich was killed. He finished fifth in last year's 500-mile classic and ranked fifth in the USAC national championship point standings for 1961.

The Mason-Dixon Line was established a century before the Civil War.

ADELE NATHAN WRITES BOOK ON A. LINCOLN

One of the most recent books on Abraham Lincoln is Adele Gutman Nathan's "Lincoln's America," a 93-page nine by 10-inch volume profusely illustrated with photographs and pen and ink sketches. It is published by Grosset and Dunlap, New York.

On the colorful jacket of her book Mrs. Nathan wrote:

"The short span of Abraham Lincoln's lifetime covered 56 of the most exciting and significant years in America's history. In 1809, when Lincoln was born, only 20 years had passed since the brand-new nation had been born. Her people were fast sweeping across a vast continent, but the 17 United States of America were still far from being truly united. The story of the nation's 'growing pains,' and of the one man whose inspired leadership was able to steer the country through the horrors of the Civil War to lasting unity is told here in a masterly combination of fascinating text and rare and unusual pictures.

ISSUES GREW LARGER

"When lanky young Abe Lincoln was still reading every book he could borrow or 'snitch,' and telling stories around the cracker barrel in the general store of New Salem, Vice President John C. Calhoun in Washington D. C., was proposing a toast: 'The Union, next to our liberty, most dear.' But Daniel Webster, the great orator, was pleading that the American flag should bear the motto: 'Liberty and Union, now and forever one and inseparable.'"

"A country expanding as rapidly as America obviously could not exist half slave and half free and remain strong. But die-hards everywhere stubbornly insisted on what they considered their rights as individual states. Temper mounted and issues grew larger, until finally a national crisis arose that threatened to destroy the hard-won Union. Then it was proved that if Washington was the founder and father of his country, Abraham Lincoln was its savior.

"The realism of authentic photographs heightens the terrific sense of drama every reader will feel when he follows this moving and awe-inspiring story to its conclusion."

11 KILLED IN ROAD MISHAPS OVER WEEKEND

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eleven persons died in traffic accidents in Pennsylvania over the weekend, pushing the overall toll to 13 from 6 p.m. Friday night until midnight Sunday.

In other weekend accidents, a man burned to death and a five-year-old boy fell to his death from a concrete bridge support.

Two separate accidents in Westmoreland County in western Pennsylvania accounted for three traffic fatalities. Clifford Baird, 16, of Slickville, and Ruth Learn, 47, of Avonmore R. 1, were killed Sunday in a head-on collision near Slickville. And John Towle, 12, Murraysville, was injured fatally Saturday night in a two-car crash in Delmont Borough.

ARREST SALESMAN

In Philadelphia, a salesman who had summoned aid for the victim of a supposed hit-and-run accident was charged by police with being the driver of the car. The victim, Harry Yampolsky, 76, died Sunday in a hospital of head injuries. The salesman, David Borachaner, 46, was held for a hearing. He had left his name with police who investigated the accident. Officers quoted Borachaner as saying he didn't know whether he hit the man or not. Since he left his name at the scene, police said, he was not charged with hit-and-run.

In another Philadelphia traffic fatality a Lawndale man was held in $1,000 bail Saturday on charges of killing another motorist while driving through a stop sign with his lights off as he fled an earlier hit-and-run crash.

The accused, Philip Benhayon, 25, was quoted by police as saying he fled the earlier crash on an impulse when one of his passengers told him to keep going. Michael McDevitt, 19, of Philadelphia, was killed in the second crash.

auxiliary by the new commander and president immediately after their installations.

Father Forceng expressed his appreciation to the Catholic War Veterans for a donation of $1,000 toward the building fund and said that $26,000 is still owed on the new school recently built by the parish.

State Commander Hreha urged the Catholic War Veterans to increase membership.

URGES YOUTH WORK

"Only about one-third of the veterans are members of any veterans' organization, the VFW, American Legion, Catholic War Veterans, Armvets, Jewish War Veterans, etc. And the numbers of all of the organizations are declining rather than increasing. Because of that, veterans do not have the influence they should have. One of the principal things we have been seeking congressional permission for those who dropped their GI insurance to renew it, has been stymied because we simply do not have the membership to force it through. We need membership now so that it can be done now. The longer it is postponed the more it will cost the veterans to resume the insurance."

He also urged the CWV to

"promote activities for youth. We hear much of delinquency, but to meet the problem we need good wholesome activities for our youth today. Those who are active in the Catholic Youth Organization, Boy Scouts, and Girl Scouts are growing into good solid patriotic citizens. It is up to us to provide such activities for youth—the leaders of tomorrow." William

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

The Ladies of Littlestown, Pa., met on Monday evening, Nov. 11, and organized themselves into an Association, called "The Ladies' Union Society for the relief of sick and wounded Soldiers in the U. S. Army." Quite a large number assembled and after adopting a Constitution, elected the following officers:

President—Mrs. Rev. S. Henry, Myers; Secretary—Mrs. Nathan Eames; Treasurer—Mrs. Wm. Mirek.

A committee of eight was appointed to solicit contributions in money, and material, for the furtherance of the objects of the Association.

Thus far, we believe, the Committee has succeeded tolerably well and will, no doubt, soon make their efforts felt among the sufferers in our Army.

Accidents: David C. Brinkerhoff Esq., of Straban township, met with another distressing accident on Monday evening week. Whilst rising from his chair he tripped upon his cane and fell, breaking his leg for the third time. The limb was, no doubt, weak from former injuries. We hope that he will in a brief time again recover.

Andrew Heintzelman, Esq., of Franklin township, was recently thrown from his horse near his residence, breaking his collar bone. We are glad to hear that he is doing as well as could be expected.

The new commissioner, Ephraim Myers, Esq., was sworn in on Monday last and took his seat in the Board Mr. Geiselman retires. Mr. Marshall is now President of the Board.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Jacob D. Earhart died suddenly at his residence at Mount Pleasant, near Westminster, Md., on Friday, Nov. 5. He was in his usual health to the hour of his death. He ate a hearty dinner, after bringing a wagon load of wood home, and was found dead, sitting on a bench on the porch soon afterwards. Deceased was in his 65th year.

A five-year old daughter of Daniel Johnson, of Waynesboro, swallowed a large grain of corn one day last week, which lodged in her wind-pipe. She was unable to secure relief and suffered greatly being in danger of strangulation. Physicians were hastily summoned and it was soon discovered that nothing less than the operation of tracheotomy would save the child. This operation was accordingly performed, and after much difficulty the grain of corn was found and removed.

The storm of Thursday was very severe in the Cumberland Valley. A number of houses and barns were unroofed, fences leveled and trees uprooted in Cumberland and Franklin counties. Chambersburg and the immediate vicinity suffered severely. A portion of the roof of the Taylor Works was blown off. Simon Shatzley's house on E. Washington St. was completely wrecked. The storm struck it just as the family were rising from bed and the building, a two-story structure, was so twisted that its inmates, when they tried to escape, could not open the doors or windows and were forced to break an upper sash in one of the windows, through which they managed to emerge in their night clothes.

Today's Talk

ANTICIPATION

The aimless life is, of course, the headless life—that is, no life at all.

Things that we anticipate nearly always thrill and lift us right out of our lethargy.

We should always be planning something ahead. And we should always be planning something that may take the place of worn out jobs and occupations.

Worries will come. Troubles will pile up until they look like a small mountain. But if you have learned to anticipate these things and to have an antidote ready, you will pass forward and grow happier as you do it.

Then there are the happy things to look forward to. There are bound to be happy things ahead. I have always found myself looking forward to the new seasons of the year for each one is full of interest and beauty. And then I have looked forward to the reading of new books purchased in a mood of delight. And I always look forward to the meeting again of those with whom I love to be.

What would life be without this anticipation?

But in all our anticipations we should store within our hearts much that will serve to keep and hold us when the darker and less interesting days may appear.

It is all very well to live for the moment. But all moments pass, and out of the change that new conditions bring about, we have need to retire unto ourselves many times and to gain renewed strength from the things which we have treasured in bygone days.

If we have lived merely to give and not to save, there will come a time when we shall need to call upon our reserves—and there will be none!

Anticipate change.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Things That Be Long To You."

Just Folks

THE MAN WHO FORGOT

He wears a long and solemn face

And drives the children from his place;

He doesn't like to hear them shout

Or race and run and romp about;

And if they chance to climb his tree

He is as ugly as can be.

If in his yard they drive a ball,

Which near his pretty flowers should fall,

He hides the leather sphere away

Hoping to thus prevent their play.

The youngsters worry him a lot,

This sorry man who has forgot.

That once upon a time, he, too,

The self-same mischief used to do.

The boyhood he has left behind

Has strangely vanished from his mind;

And he is old and gray and cross

For having suffered such a loss.

He thinks he never had the joy

That is the birthright of a boy.

Poor man, I'm sorry for your lot.

The best of life you have forgot.

Could you remember what you were,

Unharnessed and untouched by spur,

These youngsters that you drive away

Would be your comrades here to-day.

Among them you could gayly walk

And share their laughter and their talk.

You could be young and blithe as they Could you recall your yesterday.

"THE NEW NATION which they wrought was conceived in liberty and dedicated to equality. 'How freely those words come to the tongue in all parts of the earth — liberty and equality. And what strange meanings are read into them."

The challenge to freedom is not limited to forces from without. It embraces also those individuals and groups who are unceasing in their efforts to expand the powers and functions of the central government and have it intrude more deeply into the affairs of the people.

These—all these—are the continuing challenges to freedom and the task of the defenders is never finished.

COME NOW THE shining hope and the duty with which the man from Illinois right here charged his countrymen.

The HOPE—a new birth of freedom. But can there be a birth without labor and pain?

Dare we in this soft age believe when men shrink from pain and sacrifice that a new birth of freedom and a new sense of mission can come without pain?

"FURTHER HOPE"

And then the FURTHER HOPE that self government shall not perish. He did not mean government of the few but government of all. He did not say government by the few but by all. He did not say government for the few but for all.

But the key to all is government by the people, for the certain way to lose the precious power of self government is failure to use it.

SO SPOKE THE MAN from Illinois 98 years ago this day.

His imperishable words are as fresh today as when they were uttered on a cool November afternoon in this self same place.

The problem today is the same as in his day—whether in this uneasy, fevered world, this or any nation founded on liberty and equality can long endure.

THE DUTY is the same—the duty imposed upon us as a part of that endless procession of men and women to build and ennoble this good land and carry on the unfinished work.

OBLIGATION TO DEAD

The bonds are the same, for the living cannot separate themselves from their obligation to the dead.

The need is the same—for a new birth of freedom as the lamps of liberty go out in many places, either by force and brutality or by default.

The challenge is the same—for this generation to come out of the gloomy shelters of defeatism and despair and assert freedom's cause under God to all the world with the same vigor and purpose which marked the course of the man from Illinois.

His name you know—Abraham Lincoln.

ALONG REYNOLDS AVE.

The order is based, Heckel said, on "a firm belief and trust in Almighty God extolling Him under whose beneficent guidance the sovereignty and integrity of the Union have been maintained, the honor of the flag vindicated, and the blessings of civil liberty established and enlarged. And on true allegiance to the United States of America, based upon paramount respect for and fidelity to the national constitution and laws, manifested by discountenancing whatever may tend to weaken loyalty, incite to resurrection, treason or rebellion, or impair in any manner the efficiency and permanency of our free institutions."

Presentation of ground bought by the Pennsylvania Commandery jointly with the War Library and Museum, to the National Park Service is scheduled for July 3, 1963, Heckel said. The land adjoins Reynolds Ave.

In addition, he said, the Loyal Legion plans to present, "in memory of Abraham Lincoln" a $5,000 prize for the best previously unpublished manuscript on the Civil War or events leading up thereto.

He noted that the national headquarters of the Loyal Legion is located at Philadelphia along with the "separate but allied organization known as the War Library and Museum. The museum and library contains thousands of volumes on the Civil War and Lincoln plus such priceless relics as the entire uniform worn by General Meade at Gettysburg and the sword given him by Congress. General U. S. Grant's field uniform, a lock of Lincoln's hair, cut off by Secretary Stanton as the President lay dying and the paisley dressing gown worn by Jefferson Davis in his attempted escape from capture by Union Troops at the end of the war."

Located at 1805 Pine St., Philadelphia, the museum is open daily. General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Heckel said, is "honorary commander of our Pennsylvania Commandery. Five Presidents, Grant, Hayes, Arthur, Harrison and McKinley, as well as Generals Douglas MacArthur, Jonathan Wainwright, Philip Sheridan and U. S. Grant III have been commanders-in-chief of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States."

per cow has increased from 302.3 to 435 pounds in 1961. He said that in 1961 there were 1,399 cows on test, compared to 271 in 1928. Milk per cow has increased from 8,588 to 10,650 per cow in the past 33 years.

Naugle reported that 15 herds in the county increased their milk production during 1961; two have remained the same and 21 have decreased. The increase in production ranged from two to 78 pounds while the decreases were from three to 83 pounds.

Directors elected at the meeting were: Circuit I, Adam Lobaugh, Oscar Winters and John Keiser; Circuit II, Mervin Myers, Earl Noel and Robert Gitt and Lester Van Arsdale, director-at-large.

William Johnson, director of public relations for the National Farm Loan Association, spoke on the "Future in Agriculture."

FEWER FARMS

He said that agriculture "is here to stay and there will always be farms, as long as anyone is living, the reason being that as long as people live, they've got to have food. There are fewer farms today, but there is more to be divided among those who remain in the business. They divide the total income among the fewer and the result is a higher standard of living for all farmers."

"Farm land is scarce and costly and it costs a lot to get started; replacements of equipment is higher and it costs more to operate; markets are uncertain; farmers individually are small operators compared to buyers, and the net income is small."

Johnson pointed out several reasons why a farmer should farm. Among these were: Six out of 10 farmers today have no mortgage; the standard of living is high, higher than many persons living in cities; farmers can choose or vary their enterprises; the investment is pretty safe; farmers usually like their work and there are many aides to agriculture, such as land-grant colleges, extension services, home economics and ag clubs in high schools, industrial research, farmers' cooperatives and government aid programs.

GIVE DEMONSTRATION

Mary Dorr and Barbara Johnson, members of the Barlow 4-H Club, presented a demonstration on uses of milk in drinks.

The trophies were made available through the courtesy of the Credit Bureau; National Farm Loan Association; the Central Chemical Corp., the Gettysburg National Bank, the First National Bank of Gettysburg; the Metzger Feed Mill; Eastern States; Biglerville National Banks, the Littlestown State Bank and Trust Co., and Purina Foods.

Members attending the banquet were introduced by the testers, Bernard Redding in Circuit I and Gregory Gephart in Circuit II.

Officers of the association are: President, Chester Loper; vice president, Adam Lobaugh, and secretary-treasurer, Earl Noel.

Giants Alone In First Place As Browns Swamp Eagles By 45-24; Jim Brown Sets Mark

Associated Press Sports Writer
Y. A. Tittle, New York's bald bomber, has passed the Giants into first place in the National Football League's Eastern Conference donnybrook, but he needed a record-breaking performance by Cleveland's Jimmy Brown to complete the job.

While Tittle was leading the Giants to a 42-21 thumping of Pittsburgh with a three-TD performance, Brown rushed for a one-game record of 242 yards and scored four touchdowns as the Browns blitzed Philadelphia 45-24 Sunday and knocked the Eagles out of a tie for the top spot.

Brown, league ground gaining champion all four years he's been in the NFL, eclipsed his own mark of 237 yards set in a game in 1957 by averaging over seven yards a carry, and added 52 yards by catching three passes.

2ND LOSS IN ROW

The loss was Philadelphia's second in succession—the Giants administered a 38-21 beating last week—and dropped the defending champions into a second-place tie with the Browns, one game back of the Giants, New York is 8-2, Cleveland and Philadelphia 7-3.

The Green Bay Packers, playing for the first time without scoring king Paul Hornung, maintained their 1½ game edge in the Western Conference race by whipping Los Angeles 35-17 for an 8-2 record with four games to play. The Detroit Lions, runners-up in the West at 6-3-1, rolled to a 37-10 victory over Minnesota while San Francisco put a damper on Chicago's hopes with a 41-31 triumph over the Bears. Baltimore blanked St. Louis 16-0 and Washington ended its losing streak by tying Dallas 28-28.

314 PASSING YARDAGE

Tittle, veteran of 14 pro campaigns, completed 19 of 28 passes for 314 yards and made it 15 TD pitches for the season with a nine-yard flip to Joe Walton, a 38-yarder to Alex Webster and a 20-yarder to Kyle Rote. Rote also pulled in a 10-yard touchdown toss from halfback Bob Gaiters while Webster picked up another score on a 32-yard jaunt.

The Giants, winning their eighth in nine games, went ahead to stay on Gaiters' three-yard burst in the second period after a 58-yard Tittle to Rote pass had set it up. Buddy Dial scored twice for the Steelers (4-6) on a 15-yard pass from Rudy Bukich and a three-yarder from Bobby Layne, back in action after five weeks.

Brown scored his TDs on runs of 2, 4, 1 and 8 yards while Bobby Mitchell, on a weekend pass from the Army, scored the other touchdowns on a 28-yard pass from Milt Plum and a 91-yard kickoff return. Lou Groza added a field goal to the Browns' output and with six conversions brought his NFL career point total to 813, 12 short of the record held by Green Bay's Don Hutson.

JURGENSEN HAS 2
Sonny Jurgensen connected with Tommy McDonald on an eight-yard TD toss and wound up the scoring with a 39-yard toss to Tim Brown.

Trailing 7-0, the Packers exploded for 28 points against the Rams (3-7) in the second quarter when Bart Starr unlimbered his pitching arm. Jim Taylor tied it on a one-yard plunge, then Starr hit Max McGee with 20 and 13-yard TD tosses and sent a 12-yarder to Boyd Dowler. Jon Arnett had sent Los Angeles into the early lead on a 14-yard run.

Earl Morrall took over for starting quarterback Jim Ninowski with the Vikings (5-4-1) virtually abandoned the shotgun offense, hit Monte Stickles with a 44-yard touchdown pass and threw 71 and 46-yarders to rookie Aaron Thomas to beat the Bears (5-5).

Billy Wade threw three TD passes for the Bears, who lost their third in a row

Steve Myhra kicked three field goals for the Colts (5-5) after the Johnny Unitas to Lenny Moore combination had connected for a 17-yard scoring pass and the only touchdown against the Cards (4-6), who were unable to penetrate beyond the Baltimore 42.

Dick Bielecki took a three-yard strike from Eddie LeBaron to end an 82-yard march with two minutes left that gave the Cowboys (4-5-1) a tie with the Redskins. It was Washington's 20th straight game without a win, but snapped a 17-game losing streak for an 0-9-1 record.

MSM 2ND IN MEET WON BY BRIDGEWATER

Mt. St. Mary's College placed three runners in the top 11 finishers but was forced to accept second place in the annual Mason-Dixon Conference cross-country meet at Washington College, Chestertown, Md., Saturday.

Bridgewater won its second straight title by holding its point total to 56. Other team scores were Mt. St. Mary's, 95; Lynchburg, 107; Gallaudet, 113; Loyola, 115; Towson, 117; American, 136; Johns Hopkins, 193; Catholic, 194; and Washington, 282.

Rick Frampton, Loyola's star runner, led the pack home, being clocked in 16:35 for the 3.2-mile course.

Other top finishers and their times were: Lutz, Bridgewater, 16:50; Frank Murphy, Mt. St. Mary's, 16:59; J. Murphy Towson, 17:01; Beahm, Bridgewater, 17:04; John McKee, Mt. St. Mary's, 17:10; Geoghegan, Lynchburg, 17:19; Fitzpatrick, Johns Hopkins, 17:24; Orem, American, 17:25; Hammond, Bridgewater, 17:28; and Keller, Mt. St. Mary's, 17:32.

ONLY 2 TEAMS ARE UNBEATEN IN GRID PLAY

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Only two of Pennsylvania's 49 college football teams wound up the 1961 season undefeated—Albright and Susquehanna.

Albright completed its second straight unbeaten campaign Saturday with a resounding 46-0 thumping of Franklin and Marshall. An 8-8 tie with Moravian several weeks ago is the only game the Lions from Reading, Pa., have failed to win in their last 21 games.

Quarterback Gary Chapman, a senior who has passed for at least one score in each of his team's last 18 games, was the star for Albright, clicking for four TD aerials against F. & M.

Susquehanna defeated Wilkes 21-8 as Terry Kissinger scored twice and Larry Erdman returned a punt 50 yards for a score. Susquehanna has won 13 without a loss, but earlier this season was held to a 7-7 tie by Oberlin.

Allegheny, with a chance to wrap up its first unbeaten, untied season in school history and stand out as the state's only perfect record team, was upset 35-22 by a Thiel team that had won 1 and lost 4. Other notable upsets on this final big football Saturday of the season were Muhlenberg's 33-8 romp over favored Moravian and Bucknell's come-from-behind 22-14 victory over Delaware.

West Chester State shutout Slippery Rock 21-0 in winning the State College Conference championship game. Joe Iacone scored twice and raced for 239 yards on 33 carries for the winners, while teammate Jim Pribula's 9 points made him the state scoring champion for the year with 91 points, one more than East Stroudsburg's Toby Barkman.

Among the major colleges, Pitt's Fred Cox kicked a 43-yard field goal that proved to be the winning margin as Southern California gambled on a two-point conversion in the final period and lost 10-9. Penn State took a 21-0 halftime lead over Holy Cross, was stunned by the Crusaders' 14-point third quarter, and then rallied for two more TDs to win 34-14. And Penn cooperated with Columbia in helping the Lions gain at least a tie for the Ivy League title, bowing 37-6.

There was big excitement at the tradition packed Lehigh-Lafayette game. Favored Lehigh won 17-14 on a field goal in the last six seconds by end Andy Larko, who never before as a collegian had even attempted a three pointer. Temple led 14-0 with eight minutes left in the fourth quarter and lost to Toledo 15-14. A recovered fumble in the end zone provided Lebanon Valley with the winning score in a 15-14 decision over PMC.

SAYS DEFENSE NOT ON PAR WITH BROWNS

CLEVELAND (AP)—"Defensively we just weren't there," said Coach Nick Skorich of the Philadelphia Eagles in summing up his club's 45-24 National Football League loss to Cleveland Sunday.

"We will have to shift our defense," said Skorich as he looked ahead to next week's encounter with Dallas in Philadelphia's Franklin Field.

The Eagles must beat Dallas, a team they walloped previously, to stay in contention. The loss, their second straight, dropped them into a second place tie with the Browns at 7-3 in the Eastern Conference. New York is first with an 8-2 record.

LOSS OF BROOKSHIER

One big thing that has hurt the Eagles has been the loss of all-pro defensive back Tom Brookshier, out with a broken leg. To make matters worse Sunday, they lost another defensive veteran, Don Burroughs, in the second period and had to go with two rookies—Glen Amerson and Irv Cross—in the backfield. Burroughs, however, is expected to be ready to play next week.

The defensive stalwart was taken out after making a hard tackle on Ray Renfro. He was woozy with an egg-size swelling of the head. But Eagles' team physician, Dr. Mike Mandarino said he had developed another ulcer of the left eye and will be taken to Wills Eye Hospital in Philadelphia for further treatment.

WORSE PASS DEFENSE

Eagles end Pete Retzlaff, who caught only one pass, said the Browns "have the worst pass defense in the league."

"But we didn't take much advantage of it," said Retzlaff. "Maybe if we had the ball more." The Eagles had a great deal of praise for Browns' fullback Jimmy Brown who set a new NFL record of 242 yards rushing in a single game while scoring four touchdowns.

"That Brown," said defensive lineman Jesse Richardson, "hit those holes so fast I didn't even see him go by. I have never seen brown so good and I have never played against a team so sharp in execution."

Issues Charter To Umpiring Inmates

WICHITA (AP)—The National Baseball Congress announced Sunday it has re-issued its charter for a National School for Umpires and Scorers Association to the U.S. Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

Inmates who complete the course in umpiring will be granted individual membership in the national association upon their release, the NBC announced.

F. E. Kline, supervisor of recreation, is head of the umpire and scorer association at Lewisburg.

Blanda Hurls 7 TD Passes In Houston's Win

For a pappy guy who was supposed to be washed up a month ago, George Blanda is mighty active in professional football.

The 33-year-old quarterback, veteran of a dozen years in pro ranks, showed 'em Sunday that there's no substitute for experience—he threw seven touchdown passes in guiding Houston to its fifth straight victory in the American Football League.

The Oilers, with Blanda either passing for or kicking all the points—he booted seven extra points—bashed New York 49-13 to stay on top of the Eastern Division by a half-game.

The way the Oilers are moving, they look like a pretty good bet to administer the first defeat of the season to San Diego, already champion of the Western Division.

San Diego sailed over Dallas 24-14 Sunday for its eleventh straight league victory. But beating Dallas is no particular accomplishment—the Texans have lost six straight.

The only other game of importance last week was Boston's 20-17 victory over Oakland. The Patriots stayed tightly in the race for the Eastern Division championship. They don't play Houston again this season but they do play San Diego, which makes things equal.

MUCH FIGHTING

Buffalo beat Denver 23-10 in a so-what game. Neither team is going anywhere right now and Denver obviously will never get there even if it made a big effort.

Anything but a feeling of fellowship was prevalent in the Houston-New York game. There were more fights than Madison Square Garden could afford, with three players being put out for their fists. Both benches were emptied at one stage.

There were 193 yards in penalties assessed, mostly because of the fighting. This tied a league record but wasn't as important as Blanda's seven touchdown throws, which broke his own record of four set last year.

REPORT AFL IS DRAFTING GRID STARS ALREADY

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Indications were mighty strong today that the American Football League has pulled a similar stunt to 1960—jumped the gun on the draft. Only this time it violates an agreement with the American Football Coaches Association.

There could be a lot of trouble, especially from the NCAA, but apparently nothing can be done about it except talk.

Everybody apparently knew about it except Commissioner Joe Foss and his AFL office here—and Foss now has been apprised and has said he'll check into it.

3 PAPERS REPORTED
Three newspapers reported that a secret draft had been held and such stars as Ernie Davis of Syracuse, Bob Ferguson of Ohio State, Lance Alworth of Arkansas, Roman Gabriel of North Carolina State and Jim Saxon of Texas were among the selectees.

Some anonymous club officials were quoted that the draft had been held and one of them, a fellow with San Diego, told Jerry Magee of the San Diego Union, "The commissioner knew nothing about this. It was run by the owners."

The club owners are supposed to have held six rounds of the draft by telephone several weeks before Commissioner Foss set the official date of the draft for Dec. 2—the day of final college games.

Foss, in announcing the draft, said he was complying with an NCAA request not to hold the player selection until the close of the college season.

The Dallas News first broke the secret draft. Then the Union chimed in and next came the Houston Post to confirm it.

Last year the AFL held part of its draft a month earlier than the National Football League.

The Dallas News said it got first word of the secret draft from a Southwest Conference coach, who said he figured there had been one because the pros kept calling.

Foss said he didn't believe it had been done but he did admit that the AFL owners had been contacting college players they would like to draft, "just like the National Football League has been doing. But that doesn't mean we've held a draft or tried to sign anybody."

BROWN BREAKS OWN RUSHING RECORD IN NFL

CLEVELAND (AP)—"That's real nice. Just fine," Jim Brown said happily when told that he had just broken his own National Football League single-game rushing mark.

It would be hard to say whether Brown was happier over the record or the Cleveland Browns' 45-24 victory Sunday in a crucial game against the Philadelphia Eagles. The victory put both the Browns and Eagles in a tie, both with 7-3 records, one game behind the New York Giants in the Eastern Division.

Brown said he didn't realize his 242 yards in 34 carries had set a record until newsmen told him after the game. For that matter, he didn't know what the old record was. It was 237 yards, set by Brown against the Los Angeles Rams in 1957.

CAUGHT 3 PASSES

Brown also hauled in three passes for 52 yards, scored touchdowns on runs of 2, 4, 1 and 8 yards and threw one pass, which went incomplete.

Asked whether he had heard an announcement over the public address system during the game that he needed only 15 more yards for a new mark—which brought a roar from the crowd of 68,399—Brown said:

"Nope I didn't hear that. That must have been when they made that loud noise. I didn't know what it was all about. I thought maybe the Steelers had come back to beat the Giants." (The Giants won 42-21).

NOT SATISFIED

Looking for his fifth straight NFL rushing championship, Brown has gained 1,095 yards this year—his fourth straight year over the 1,000 mark.

Still, the 230-pound fullback wasn't completely satisfied with his performance.

"I won't say this was my best game," he said. "I've played some better all-around games this year. I missed a few blocks today and a couple of times I went the wrong way when I got a good block."

"The blocking was tremendous. No, I don't think I ran any better than usual. You always go all out and sometimes you gain and sometimes you don't."

One man who was impressed by Brown's crushing advances was Eagles' Coach Nick Skorich.

"That Brown was great," he said. "He can run over the best of them."

HOPE FOR EIGHT TEAMS IN EBL

NEW YORK (AP)—The Eastern Baseball League's president hopes the Class A circuit will have eight teams when it begins play next April 24.

Rankin Johnson of Williamsport, Pa., who was re-elected league president for a one-year term here over the weekend, said the final composition of the circuit would be determined at the minor league meetings in Tampa, Fla., Nov. 27-Dec. 1.

Elmira, N.Y., will rejoin the league after a six-year absence next season. It will be a farm club of the Baltimore Orioles, Johnson said.

Johnson became president last year after Tommy Richardson stepped down to become president of the Class Triple A International League.

The league adopted a 140-game schedule running through Sept. 9. The Eastern All-Star game will be played at a time and place to be decided later, Johnson reported. He said the league playoffs will be resumed in 1962 after a season's absence.

Other league franchises are Williamsport, Reading and York, Pa., Springfield, Mass., and Binghamton, N.Y.

SANDERS WINS CAJUN CLASSIC

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—"That guy Arnold will have something to say about it," quipped Doug Sanders when asked if he believed he could overtake Arnold Palmer in the final three tournaments of the year and move into second place in earnings on the 1961 PGA circuit.

"Arnold is one hell of an athlete," Sanders said Sunday after winning $2,000 in first place money in the $15,000 Cajun Classic Golf Tourney.

"You know," he said "Palmer can play bad and still score. And when he plays good, he scores even better."

FAMOUS SHORT SCORING
Sanders used his now-famous short swing and unorthodox stance plus his methodical putting to post a record 14-under par 270 for the 72-hole tourney. He was tied for the lead the first day and took sole possession following the second round.

The $2,000 check boosted his tournament earnings for 1961 to $53,665.23, about $1,900 short of Palmer's total.

Palmer, golf's man of the year in 1960 with record earnings over $60,000, plans to return to the circuit at Mobile this week for the $20,000 Sertoma Open. Both he and Sanders could conceivably overtake idle Gary Player in the money race before the year ends.

TWO TRUJILLO BROTHERS BOLT ISLAND IN FACE OF U.S. THREAT

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Bowing to a U.S. show of force and opposition from young Dominican air force generals, the Trujillo clan today appeared to have abandoned an attempt to set up a new dictatorship in this Caribbean republic.

President Joaquin Balaguer, pledged to set the nation on the road to democracy, extended his control as 29 top Trujillo officials slipped out of the country at midnight aboard a chartered airliner. Two brothers of slain dictator Rafael L. Trujillo led the exodus of the crumbling family dynasty that ruled the country for 31 years virtually as a private plantation.

WANTED POWER

The two—Gen. Hector Trujillo, a former president, and Gen. Jose Arismendi Trujillo, who had his own army—went originally into exile three weeks ago but returned quietly last week in what the United States charged appeared to be a desperate attempt to seize power.

Gen. Rafael L. Trujillo Jr., son of the former dictator who reportedly was at odds with his uncle, quit as commander-in-chief of the armed forces last week when they "came back and sailed away in his yacht." Balaguer, himself a former front man for the old dictator, still faced the prospect of difficulties with strong opposition party elements in carrying out his pledge to bring democracy to the country.

BECAME SUSPICIOUS

Some opposition leaders were openly suspicious that the threat from the Trujillo faction was not really over. "The pro-Trujillos are too smug about the entire situation," one said.

The president took over subers of the Luther League; remarks, Melinda Karns, president of the Luther League; prayer, Shirley Bair. The sermon on the subject "What Think Ye of Christ?" was delivered by the pastor, the Rev. William C. Karns. Kathy Miller served as organist for the service. The ushers were Donald Bair, Gloria Barnes, Shirley Anderson and James Strevig. The altar flowers were presented by Mr. and Mrs. David Erb in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Spangler.

The Board of Directors of the West Pennsylvania Conference Inner Mission Society will meet in St. John's Church tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. Alvin J. Groft, of St. John's is a member of this board. The Tuck-a-bache Class will serve refreshments to the board, after which the class will hold the November meeting. Due to the community Thanksgiving service, there will be no choir rehearsals this week. The fall clothing drive is now in progress. Good used clothing should be placed in the Sunday School vestibule, and the drive will close after Thanksgiving.

LITTLESTOWN — The Rev. Glenn Flinchbaugh, pastor of Redeemer's United Church of Christ, delivered a sermon on the subject "God Loves a Hilarious Giver," at the Sunday morning worship service. The Scripture was read from 2 Corinthians 9:7-15. The Senior Choir sang the anthem "Come Ye Thankful People, Come." Rasley, and the Cherub Choir sang the anthem "A Thanksgiving Song." The Christian Enlistment teams were commissioned by the pastor during the worship, and these 26 teams visited in the homes of the congregation during the afternoon. The altar flowers were presented by the family of Mr. and Mrs. Orville C. Sentz in memory of Mrs. Sentz's parents, Harry A. and Flora B. Parr.

A Thanksgiving program was presented in the Adult Department of Redeemer's Sunday School Sunday. The Young Women's Bible Class was in charge and Mrs. Elmer W. Gall was devotional leader. The lesson was taught from the desk by the Rev. Mr. Flinchbaugh. A duet was sung by Mrs. Clyde W. Crouse and Mrs. Robert W. Hall, accompanied by Mrs. George A. Stonieser.

Redeemer's choir will not rehearse this week due to the Thanksgiving holiday. Next Sunday, the Mercersburg Synod Youth Rally will be held in Redeemer's Church from 2:30 to 8 p.m. A worthwhile program has been planned for the 150 or more young people expected to attend. The church will hold a Christmas bazaar in the basement rooms on Thursday and Friday, November 30 and December 1. All proceeds will be given to the new heater fund.

The first meeting of the season of the Frogtown Homemakers was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Slusser, near town. Mrs. Robert Gitt and Mrs. Clyde W. Crouse presented the program on "Preparing Sea Foods." The programs for the year were discussed. Mrs. Richard Shade was welcomed as a new member. Mrs. Carl Zeigler was a guest. A dinner party will be held in conjunction with the next meeting on Wednesday, December 20, at the home of Mrs. Herbert Wolfe, Frogtown. The arrangement committee comprises Mrs. Anna Newman, Mrs. Ralph Steick and Mrs. John Updyke. Guests are invited to attend with the members. It is requested that three dozen cookies be taken by each member.

JOHN S. FINE WEDS WIDOW

LOYALVILLE, Pa. (AP)—Former Gov. John S. Fine has married Mrs. Bernice Pethick, a prominent Wilkes-Barre civic and social worker.

luncheon followed at the Barclay Hotel. Then, Donald said, the couple left for a brief trip to Florida. A longtime power in Republican politics, Fine, 68, was governor from 1951 to 1955. Before that, he was a justice of the Superior Court and judge of the Luzerne County Common Pleas Court. Last January he was named in indictments charging him with evading more than $45,000 in income taxes. Trial is scheduled this winter.

The ex-governor's first wife, the former Helene Morgan, died shortly after his 1951 inaugural. The present Mrs. Fine has been married twice before. Her first marriage, to George Scheuer, a Scranton bakery owner, ended in divorce. Her second husband was Harry Pethick, a contractor who died nine years ago. Mrs. Fine is about 50. She is known in civic and social circles in Wilkes-Barre and is active in church and YWCA work. Her two teenage daughters, Pamela and Suzanne, attended the ceremony as did Fine's two sons, Donald and John Jr. Mrs. Fine was given in marriage by her father, Herman Johnson, of Kingston, Pa.

LIST NOMINATIONS

The Christ Church Consistory has announced that the terms of Lewis E. Bair and Clyde L. Sterner as elders; Lester L. Hiker and Ray F. Slaybaugh as deacons, and Bernard W. Dutcher as trustee, expire. The Consistory has nominated the following for the respective offices: Edgar W. Berwager and Melvin L. Spangler as elders; Paul J. Mummert and Mervin K. Myers as deacons, and Alvin C. Gerrick as trustee. The Sunday School superintendent has appointed the following Christmas program committee: Mrs. G. Howard Koons, Mrs. Richard D. Sheely, Mrs. Charles A.

Grove, Miss Nancy R. Koons, Mrs. Shirley J. Kuhn and Miss Mary Jane Harman; Christmas decorating in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon S. Arentz and the classes taught by Clyde L. Sterner and Richard J. Berwager.

The choir sang the anthem "O Lord Remember Me" at the Sunday morning worship service in Christ Church. The sermon was delivered by the pastor, the Rev. G. Howard Koons. Donald L. Wolfe, B. Wayne Warner, Lester L. Hiker and David M. Welk served as ushers. The Women's Guild placed a rosebud on the altar in honor of Gregory Lynn Rebert, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Rebert. Bulletins and altar flowers were given in honor of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Berwager, by the children; bulletins in memory of the birthday of Mrs. Verley J. Clouser by the family. Bulletin sponsors should contact Lester L. Hiker.

Christ Church Choir will rehearse Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The annual thank offering service in charge of the Women's Guild will be held next Sunday at 10:30 a.m. The guest speaker will be Mrs. John Z. Martin, New Oxford. Members of the Guild will participate in the service. The Young Married Couples Class, taught by Harold E. Shoemaker, is selling fruit cakes for the benefit of the building fund.

CENTENARY NEWS

"They Say" was the subject of the sermon delivered by the pastor, the Rev. William R. Jones, at the worship service on Sunday morning in Centenary Methodist Church. The Scripture lesson was read from II Corinthians 20:1-13 and Matthew 5:43-48. An anthem was sung by the choir. The altar flowers were placed in observance of the birthday of the Rev. Mr. Jones, presented by his wife. It was announced that the annual clothing drive will end next Sunday and clothing should be taken to the church. The Senior Choir will rehearse at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday.

The two reed organs which were used in Centenary Church will be sold to the highest bidder. Sealed bids must be in the hands of the secretary of the Official Board, Mrs. Chester S. Byers, 30 E. Myrtle St., on or before December 15. They will be opened at the next meeting of the Board. Organs may be seen by appointment, call 359-4016.

Play On Fowl Day

When television loses its charm and the youngsters descend upon you in the kitchen, you have two methods for insuring the Thanksgiving dinner will be ready on time.

1. Run them out and bar the door.
2. Interest them in games, preferably enlisting the aid of one of the idle men of the family as referee.

If you decide on the second course, you could add a true historic flavor to the proceedings by introducing traditional Thanksgiving games.

CRANBERRY CONTEST

The youngsters are each given a large needle with a long, coarse thread. They stand around a large bowl of raw cranberries. At a signal they begin threading cranberries as rapidly as possible. At the end of three minutes time is called.

CORN GAME

Five ears of dried corn are hidden around the house. Finders are finalists in a contest to see who can strip the cob of kernels first. The nonfinders make up the cheering section.

(To add historic interest you could explain that the five ears of corn are used in tribute to the five grains of corn which legend says were the daily ration of Pilgrims during the second bleak winter. If you have to use fewer than five ears because a smaller number is playing, make up your own story).

Littlestown

MRS. ALTOFF
SUBJECT FOR JAYCEE SHOW

The Littlestown Junior Chamber of Commerce staged the sixth annual "This Is Your Life" program and variety show on Saturday evening in the auditorium of the Littlestown High School. The entertainment began with greetings from the local Jaycees, brought by Emerson F. Muller, president Mr. Muller was introduced to the audience by Jaycee Richard E. Selby, program director at radio station WGET, Gettysburg.

Mrs. Paul E. Altoff, 24 E. Myrtle St., was the surprise guest of honor on the "This Is Your Life" program. The unfolding of her life story was under the guidance of Marvin Breighner as master of ceremonies.

To the background music of "It Had To Be You," the name of the honored guest was announced by the emcee and Mrs. Altoff was escorted to the stage by President Muller, who presented her with an orchid corsage. An innovation of this year's program was the showing of pictures on screen placed on stage and the first was a six-month-old picture of Mrs. Altoff, eighth and youngest child of the late Thomas O. Weaver, who died in October, 1941, and Alverta Sell Weaver, who has resided with her son-in-law and daughter since their marriage and who has been bedfast for the last two years. Mary was born on January 9, 1917, in Kentland, Indiana, and the family moved to Pennsylvania when she was six years old. Her only sister, Dorothy, who is Mrs. John L. Sneeringer, New Oxford R. D., was the first member of her family to greet her on stage. Her youngest brother, Dale E. Weaver, Westminster, and another brother, P. Westmyer, Littlestown, recalled incidents of the past. A family picture and an Eighth Grade graduation picture from St. Aloysius Parochial School in 1930, when she was valedictorian with diploma bearer Marguerite Collins, now Mrs. Robert W. Long, Prince St., were shown.

From her high school class, LHS '34, came Mrs. Arlene Trosch Blocher and Chester S. Byers, class president, who read an excerpt from the year book of which Mary was editor-in-chief. It was also recalled that she received the first American Legion citizenship award that year.

Representing the faculty during her high school years was Mrs. Jennings B. Collins, Gettysburg, the former Golda O. Hook, who was a written message from Harold R. Schriver, who coached the basketball team of which Mary was a member. Her first office job was with the Cambell Shoe Company, where Blue Ridge is now located, and later with the Windsor Shoe Company, where she was bookkeeper and private secretary for 10 years, first for Harold R. Goldberg, who is now owner of a chain of shoe factories in New England and from whom a telegraphed message was read.

The life story continued with mention of participation in plays and operettas in high school, in home talent productions in the years following; trips to the New York World's Fair, to the home town in Indiana, to visit relatives in Texas, to national conventions of the National Council of Catholic Women in Detroit and Toledo. Mrs. Altoff was first president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Alpha Fire Company when it was organized in 1939.

During World War II she edited "Windsor News," a 20-page bulletin of jokes, cartoons, messages from the boys in the service, news of the factory and the community included. Walter S. Mehring, tax collector-elect, represented the factory's G.I. recipients of the bulletin.

MOTHER OF FOUR

The subject's family appeared following the reading of the original typewritten proposal of marriage and the equally businesslike acceptance; her husband, Paul E. Altoff, with pictures of their engagement in October, 1943, and their wedding on January 3, 1946; their four children, Laurence and Margaret Mary, Sophomore and Freshmen, respectively, at Delone Catholic High School, both of whom received the grade school Legion Citizenship awards; Robert and Gerard, Eighth and Seventh Grade students at St. Aloysius Parochial School, ages 15, 14, 13 and 12. All four are active in Scouts and have received their Ad Altare Dei and Marian Awards.

Mrs. Altoff has been a member of the Woman's Community Club for 25 years and Mrs. Atlee F. Rebert, president of the Adams County Federation of Women's Clubs and past president of the Woman's Club, brought greetings and a charm bracelet gift with a St. Christopher medal for church activities, Halloween mask for UNICEF work, a joined engagement and wedding ring; a baby shoe, telephone, and a replica of the Jabberwock trophy which she help to win for the Woman's Club.

The guest of honor has also been active for 25 years in the National Council of Catholic Women and is currently Coneywago Deane Council president. Mrs. Edwin J. Killalea, Gettysburg, immediate past president of the deane, brought greetings, a gift, "Life of Christ" by Bishop Sheen and a personal gift, a medal blessed by Pope John XXIII, when she was in audience.

Mrs. Altoff has been Littlestown correspondent for the Hanover Evening Sun for over 14 years. She currently does stenographic work for Lee Metal Products and job typing, including a bogus "This Is Your Life" script for the Jaycees last week.

Jaycees Vice President Paul F. Boller presented Mrs. Altoff with a silver tray, appropriately engraved and she was guest of honor at a party for those appearing on the program, and other members of her family, following the conclusion of "This Is Your Life." The script and a tape-recording of the program was also presented to her by the Jaycees.

The Variety Show, featuring all local talent, preceded This Is Your Life, and was emceed by Richard Horner, M. St. The show included the "L-tones," Littlestown High School senior girls sextette, composed of Sally Basette, Sally Brown, Linda Ealy, Bonnie Greene, Mary Jane Harmon and Melinda Kams, accompanied by JoAnn Scott, and they sang "Climb Every Mountain" from "The Sound of Music." An accordion solo, "Tea for Two," was played by Mary Jane Harmon, LHS senior and a member

The chorus appeared for the first time in the new gowns of blue with a gold stole type collar, the school colors.

This was the first public affair held in the auditorium of the new high school since its dedication in September. As the approximately 500 patrons were gathering, they were entertained with selections on the organ by Barry Wisotzky, junior high school student.

How can you be sure you're getting a '62?

Don't worry. You couldn't buy a new '61 VW even if you wanted to. There are none left. Besides, there are some sure-fire ways to identify the '62.

It just takes a little looking. The taillights are a half an inch bigger. The new VW also has a gas gauge. For the first time. But most of the '62 changes can't be seen at all. You feel them.

We put new heater outlets both front and rear. You use less pressure for braking. Clutch and brake cables that used to need maintenance, don't any more.

We don't think we can make anything on a VW stay shut better. So we made a few things stay open better. Doorstops that work. A spring to hold the front trunk hood open.

In all, there are 28 significant changes in the '62 Volkswagen. But not one of them was designed to make last year's model obsolete.

And that's the way it'll be in '63, too.

U. Of Mississippi Historian Speaks At Opening Of Civil War Conference Sunday

Dr. James W. Silver, professor of history at the University of Mississippi, Clinton, Miss., spoke on "The Tragedy of Southern Leadership" at the opening session of the fifth annual Civil War Conference in Christ Chapel, Gettysburg College, Sunday evening.

He spoke in part as follows: "The people of South Carolina, Mississippi and five other states of the lower South would not have succeeded had they foreseen four long years of a bloody conflict they were designed to lose. Moreover, they would never have withdrawn from the Union without a careful preparation for such an eventuality by shortsighted and blundering leaders. In effect, the people had been conditioned to make the proper response to the correct stimulus, the election of Abraham Lincoln in this case."

"By 1860, as Wilbur Cash saw it, the South had become a land of fantasy. There was cause for alarm in the Southerner's estimate of the Yankee, and in his belief in a solid South, whose tribal God would never let down his chosen people. It was generally believed that secession, being perfectly legal, would take place without a 'jostle or a jar.' The Yankee ('low-bred, crass, and money grubbing') had no stomach for man-to-man encounter in the open field with the chivalrous Southern."

SOUTH WAS CONFUSED

"Nobody in the South, at least nobody articulate, acted as though he had the faintest glimmer of an understanding of Lincoln. If Lincoln had been the rogue the Yankee had been disciplined to believe him, he could have done little immediate damage. To crown this strange confusion of circumstance, the Supreme Court had not long before awarded the South her last inch of demand in the western territories."

"The truth seems to be that the people of the deep South, under severe provocation it is true, had nevertheless been thoroughly prepared by their bungling politicians, their chauvinistic press, their political preachers, and their blind philosophers. They had been seriously misinformed."

"For her own good reasons the South drew back from the spirit of nineteenth century movements directed toward freeing the human mind and upholding the divinity of the individual. The South developed her own orthodoxy which came into full bloom in the 1850's. This Southern Creed consisted of the pro-slavery argument, state rights, and religious fundamentalism. The newspapers and magazines, the colleges and churches, the legislatures and commercial and agricultural conventions, were lined up almost solidly to preserve and expand the accepted southern way."

SUPPRESS MINORITY

"As it gained power, the southern majority protected itself by ruthlessly suppressing minority dissent within the section. The South's retreat from reality, its willingness to override individual rights; its renunciation of the doctrine of progress, and its insistence on thought control, sprang consciously from the minds of her leaders. The statesmen who 20 years before had accepted a large part of the disgrace of slavery in 1856 saw slavery as 'the most solid and durable foundation on which to rear free and stable institutions.'"

"The historic use of state rights by every section of the country need not detain us here. Its identification with the South and conservative groups generally, however, may remind us that a state righter is, by definition, anyone whose enemies are in power in Washington. With the election of Lincoln the state rights fetish, never abandoned, was dusted off and with a flourish made ready for spectacular use."

RELIGIOUS TROUBLE

"Long before 1860 religious orthodoxy had laid its paralyzing hand on the South. Literal scrutiny of the Scriptures was accepted as the gateway to salvation. Religious fundamentalism denied to the South its only intellectually sound defense of slavery, the new anthropology. The pious Southerner kept his fundamentalism and lost his science."

"Patriotism became the first duty of the citizen. A ban was placed on analysis and inquiry; there was little hospitality to new ideas; complacency reigned."

"The South was morbidly sensitive. There was little in the college curriculum of that day to direct the student's attention to current problems, and after 1845 expression of unorthodox views carried the threat of expulsion. 'In the 1820's the southern press did not generally defend slavery; 20 years later it did so almost unanimously. By the decade of the Fifties slave state legislatures had imposed severe penalties for criticism of slavery. Postmasters and justices of the peace were granted inquisitorial power over the mails. In the 30 years before the Civil War the South was victimized by its own authoritarian special pleading. Most tragic of all, the Southern Creed became fixed, static, an article of faith to be accepted, not examined."

POPULATION CHANGES

"Rapid population changes made it rather evident that after 1820 the South was destined for permanent minority status. Bargaining, compromise, concession, toleration, and a sympathetic concern for problems confronted by people in other areas were clearly indicated as enlightened self-interest. Since 1830 the South had been proving the correctness of its constitutional principles — the true faith — with such fanatical inflexibility that it sacrificed hundreds of chances for political and economic advantage. Calhoun's straightjacket thinking led to one blunder after another."

"A surprisingly good case can be made for the contention that the abolitionists were mightily assisted in rousing northern opinion by their deadly enemies, the southern leaders. The South innocently expected the North to suppress its lunatic fringe. The same blunder was perpetrated by those irritated and emotional Southerners who gained a witless eight-year gag rule (in Congress) while handing on a platter to the abolitionists the cause of respectability. The gag rule fanned the flames the South hoped to extinguish. Overnight abolitionists were no longer meddlesome fanatics but champions of a great constitutional right. Southern extremists built up a bogey-man in Garrison and treated him and his kind as representative of the North."

USED FITZHUGH

"The South 'must meet agitation by counter-agitation,' cried George Fitzhugh. 'We can throw firebrands as well as the abolitionists.' Fitzhugh's disagreement of Northern society as 'countless millions of paupers

Two Indians with an English accent deserve much of the credit for the first Thanksgiving in America.

They taught the Plymouth colonists how to make a home in the New World and helped them establish a peace that lasted for more than 50 years.

and criminals who build up and sustain the cowardly, infidel, licentious, revolutionary edifice of free society? provided ammunition for Northern politicians. Lincoln used Fitzhugh in every speech he made in 1856. Henry Foote invited New Hampshire's abolition senator to visit Mississippi where he would be hanged from the highest tree, John P. Hale replied that if Foote came to New Hampshire he would get a respectful hearing. Southern leaders played with amazing ineptitude into the hands of abolitionists and the Republicans."

"It seems unbelievable that any cold blooded southern politician would have handed to the abolitionists such a deadly weapon to belabor the South as the Fugitive Slave Law of 1850. The northern people would not obey the law. It's most noteworthy results were in the propaganda value to the cause of abolition."

LIKE ADOLESCENT

"With only a little flexibility in its thinking, instead of the idiosyncrasy of Fitzhugh, the South might have presented a position something like this: Slavery in the South will help keep the Negro out of the North. Slavery is necessary because it will be a long time before the Negro is ready for freedom anywhere. Slavery can be an education process. North and South should unite in a truly American way of life. But in each crisis — Uncle Tom's Cabin, Kansas-Nebraska Act, H. R. Helper's controversial book 'The Impending Crisis,' the Brooks-Summer affair, and John Brown's raid — the South reacted as a capricious adolescent rather than as a calculating, mature adult."

The first to approach the colonists was a chief of the Pemaquid Indians. He walked into the colony one day in March, 1621, and unsettled the settlers by addressing them in English. Samoset, it turned out, had earlier met some English fishermen along the coast of Maine and learned some of the language from them.

Two weeks later Samoset dropped in with his friend Squanto, a well-traveled brave of the Pawtuxet tribe. Squanto had been to England twice, once after having been kidnapped and sold as a slave in Spain by an English sea captain. He had returned to America in 1619.

Samoset introduced the colonists to Massasoit, chief of the Plymouth area. With Squanto acting as interpreter, the chief and the Pilgrims concluded a treaty of friendship that lasted until Massasoit died in 1661.

Meanwhile Squanto went to live with the colonists, teaching them how to plant corn, pumpkins and beans and showing them where to fish.

That year the Pilgrims had a bountiful harvest and Governor William Bradford declared the celebration that became the first Thanksgiving.

If it hadn't been for a strong wind, the Pilgrims might have celebrated Thanksgiving in New York. They expected to settle somewhere near the Hudson River but the wind and the shoals off Cape Cod forced them to turn north.

The first deed of Indian land to an English colonist is believed to have been made by Samoset, a chief of the Pemaquids. He transferred 12,000 acres of his tribe's land to the Plymouth colonist John Brown in 1625.

EDITOR SPEAKS AT CIVIL WAR SESSION HERE

Lenoir Chambers, editor of The Virginia Pilot, Norfolk, Va., spoke on "Confederate Military Leadership" at this afternoon's session of the Civil War Conference.

LENOIR CHAMBERS

ence at Gettysburg College. He spoke as follows:

"Military leadership in the Confederacy was affected by conditions not directly connected with strategy, and tactics. It involved the organization of the War Department, how well quartermaster officials functioned, how regularly trains ran, what the ordnance people were doing, and how many soldiers lacked shoes. In addition, the influence of Jefferson Davis weighed heavily on the field commanders. The fact that six men occupied in turn the post as secretary of war was a problem. Davis' inability to delegate authority, to refrain from directing generals in the field, his obsession with detail was a factor."

LOCKED INFORMATION

"Since operations were directed from Richmond there was a tendency to concentrate attention on Virginia and the East. Richmond lacked sufficient information about situations and conditions west of the mountains — even to a greater extent conditions west of the Mississippi River. Davis' reliance on Lee, a Virginian and an Easterner, further accentuated this weakness in Confederate operations. There was no effective central authority."

"Officers were at first untrained and inexperienced. They had, other than the West Pointers, little systematic training. The fact that many were elected by the men and that casualties took a terrible toll of the bravest and motions. Finally, they tended to reflect the American nonmilitary tradition and history. Even the West Pointers were likely to be followers of the Jominian school, a school whose ideas did not fit the conditions of the Civil War."

"NOT FREE MEN"

"The field commanders were not free men. They were limited by directions from Richmond, by constant shortages and by the numerical inferiority of their troops. They had to fight and endure."

"Lee overcame the handicaps in large measure by his exceptional spiritual power, the confidence he commanded, the respect he won from the men, and their whole-hearted affection. His defects were his 'excessive amiability and a mistaken theory of high command.' His practice was to design strategy and deliver the army to the appointed spot and then leave the conduct of the fighting to his subordinates. He lacked the killer instinct—he was more a counter-puncher. After all this is said, it is doubtful if any other general could have written a better record in Virginia from 1862 to 1865."

"ABLEST LIEUTENANTS"

"Lee had the ablest lieutenants in the Confederate Army—Jackson, Longstreet, and Stuart. Jackson's death was the severest personal loss suffered in the war. Longstreet demonstrated sufficient capacity to rate among the best Confederate officers. Stuart's fondness for show did not prevent him from doing exceedingly well what needed to be done—keep the Confederates informed and the enemy in the dark. Probably Lee's ability and personality help explain why he had the most effective lieutenants."

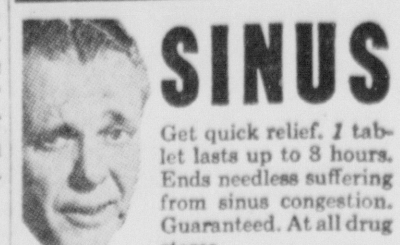

"A question still remains—why the greater success of the Eastern armies than those of the West? One answer is that in the East the government settled down with Lee and found him satisfactory."

In the West Albert Sidney Johnston was killed, and then followed a succession of generals—Beauregard, Bragg, Joseph E. Johnston, Hood and finally Joseph E. Johnston again. None of them ranked with Lee, or for that matter with Jackson or Longstreet. Perhaps sheer geographical distance was a factor. Confederate armies in the West were never well supplied, but for that matter no Confederate armies were. On land the war was lost to the Confederacy in the West."

LONDON (AP)—Eight people, including three children, were rescued by London firemen when an American servicemen's club caught fire Saturday. The club, the "242" at Harrow Road, Paddington, was closed at the time.

The rescued people, including a French family of a man, woman and child, occupied two apartments over the club.

MERCURY

Comet's got "IT"

According to local Mercury dealers, the reasons for the success of the Mercury Comet are many. One source is quoted as saying, "Most people credit Comet's fine-car styling. This, of course, is true. Comet is styled like a high-priced car, but that's not the entire story by a long shot."

Credits price, size, ride

"In my opinion," he went on, "the low price of the Mercury Comet helped it become a hit with the public right from the start. Add to this the longer wheelbase that makes Comet's ride smoother than that of competitive makes, plus greater room all around, and you can see why the public considers the Mercury Comet a tremendous buy."

It was also pointed out that Comet's trunk is the largest in the compact car field. This makes it ideal for the average family that uses its car for shopping, transporting "do-it-yourself" supplies and long vacation trips.

Combines compact economy with high resale

Being a compact car, Mercury Comet naturally has the kind of handling ease that Americans have wanted in cars for years. It is nimble, maneuvers with minimum effort, and is a cinch to park.

Even more important, perhaps, is the fact that Comet, being a true compact car, offers remarkable economy. In addition to savings on gas, there are savings on tires and over-all maintenance. In 1962 models, for example, oil changes are needed only at 6,000-mile intervals (about twice a year for most drivers). The car also comes with a new anti-freeze, anti-rust radiator coolant that provides cooling system protection for a full two years.

One other point that gives Comet owners great pleasure is the matter of its higher resale value. While the value of other compact cars seems to drop quickly on the used car market, Mercury Comet's record proves it holds its value beautifully. As a result, owners

BUY THE CAR THAT'S GOT "IT" '62 MERCURY COMET

HERE'S PROOF THAT MERCURY

Comet's the "IT" car can expect top allowances when they're ready to trade.

Best-looking buys now in each size

Mercury dealers are heralding the fact that they now have a car to fit every buyer. The running mate to the compact '62 Mercury Comet is the handsome Mercury Monterey. This car, it is said, was made for the big-car man. It is a big, hefty package with a choice of 4 brawny V-8 engines. The wheelbase is a lengthy 120" and, in conjunction with a special suspension system called Cushion-Link Suspension, offers a ride that compares with highest priced cars.

Mercury Monterey in popular-price range

Despite the fact that Mercury Monterey's ride, room, luxury and styling give the impression that the car is in a higher priced field, car buyers will find that the Mercury Monterey for 1962 is well within the popular-price range. This is one reason the car is considered by many as the best-looking buy for the big-car man.

A money-saver in many ways

Mercury Monterey offers wonderful economies in upkeep. Its many self-servicing features include a chassis that requires lubrication only at 30,000-mile intervals. A new-type oil filter needs oil changes only once every 6,000 miles. Brakes are self-adjusting. When the driver backs up the car, brakes of all four wheels automatically adjust, if necessary, for greater efficiency.

For increased body life, vital areas of sheet metal are protected against rust by a special process. In addition, the car has a special Super-Enamel finish. This rugged finish keeps its luster, needs only occasional washing, never needs waxing.

In short, maintenance has been reduced to routine service just twice a year for most drivers. Mercury dealers suggest that the most convincing demonstrations of Mercury quality can be obtained by arranging a test drive at their showrooms.

Rockefeller Flies To New Guinea To Seek Missing Son

THE HAGUE (AP)—The Dutch companion of the missing Michael Rockefeller was rescued off the morning by a Dutch navy craft off the southern coast of New Guinea, the Dutch government announced today.

The search for Rockefeller, youngest son of New York's governor, is continuing, the government said.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, pale and shaken, was off on a 10,000-mile plane dash from New York to New Guinea, hoping he would find his son waiting for him. He stopped for the night in San Francisco.

The rescued man, a Dutch official named R. S. Wassing, 34, said that he had last seen Rockefeller floating on two cans off the southern mouth of the Eilanden River—River of the Island.

He did not know if Rockefeller had reached the uninhabited shore, the Interior Ministry announcement said.

The announcement, based on information from the Dutch administration at Hollandia and the air arm of the Dutch navy, said that

Sunday at 4 p.m. local time a capsized prahu—a small native vessel—was spotted off the mouth of the Eilanden River.

Naval craft could not reach the prahu before dusk fell and during the night contact was lost, the announcement said. But this morning the prahu was sighted again 14 miles off the coast.

Wassing was taken aboard a naval craft this morning at 9 a.m. and is in good health, the announcement said.

PHOTOGRAPHY USED BY MANY INDUSTRIES

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—A camera taking 360 degree photos every 8 feet down a 500-foot hole in the ground helps the Hughes Tool Co. design new drilling bits for oil prospectors.

By measuring electronically the color of molten steel in a furnace on a color photograph Bethlehem Steel can make sure its product is at the required temperature.

Shell Oil geologists study aerial photographs to judge prospects of finding oil, and often save themselves a trip that way.

Monsanto chemical says photography has cut drafting time in its plant maintenance program by 30 per cent.

All of this is why more and more industrial and business firms are setting up their own photographic departments.

At least 9,600 companies employ one or more photographers, double the number 10 years ago, according to Fred Quellmalz Jr., executive manager of the Professional Photographers of America, with headquarters in Milwaukee. And a huge, if uncataloged, number of outside photographers are used by these and other corporations on an ever growing variety of assignments.

MANY ADVANTAGES
Many of the research operations, Quellmalz said in an interview, couldn't function without photography.

He explained: "Cameras can stretch or condense time, can be sent where men cannot go, can relieve the tedium and expense of recording data by human observation, can be teamed with other instruments such as microscope and spectroscopy, can see forms of light and other radiation man's eyes cannot."

The public is most familiar with industrial photography as it shows up in ads or commercials.

USED IN INSTRUCTION
But a big part of the job of corporate photography departments is for use within the companies themselves. This runs from controlling production to plant layouts, product development, inventory control, engineering, material handling, traffic, inspection, employee training, reproducing and duplicating.

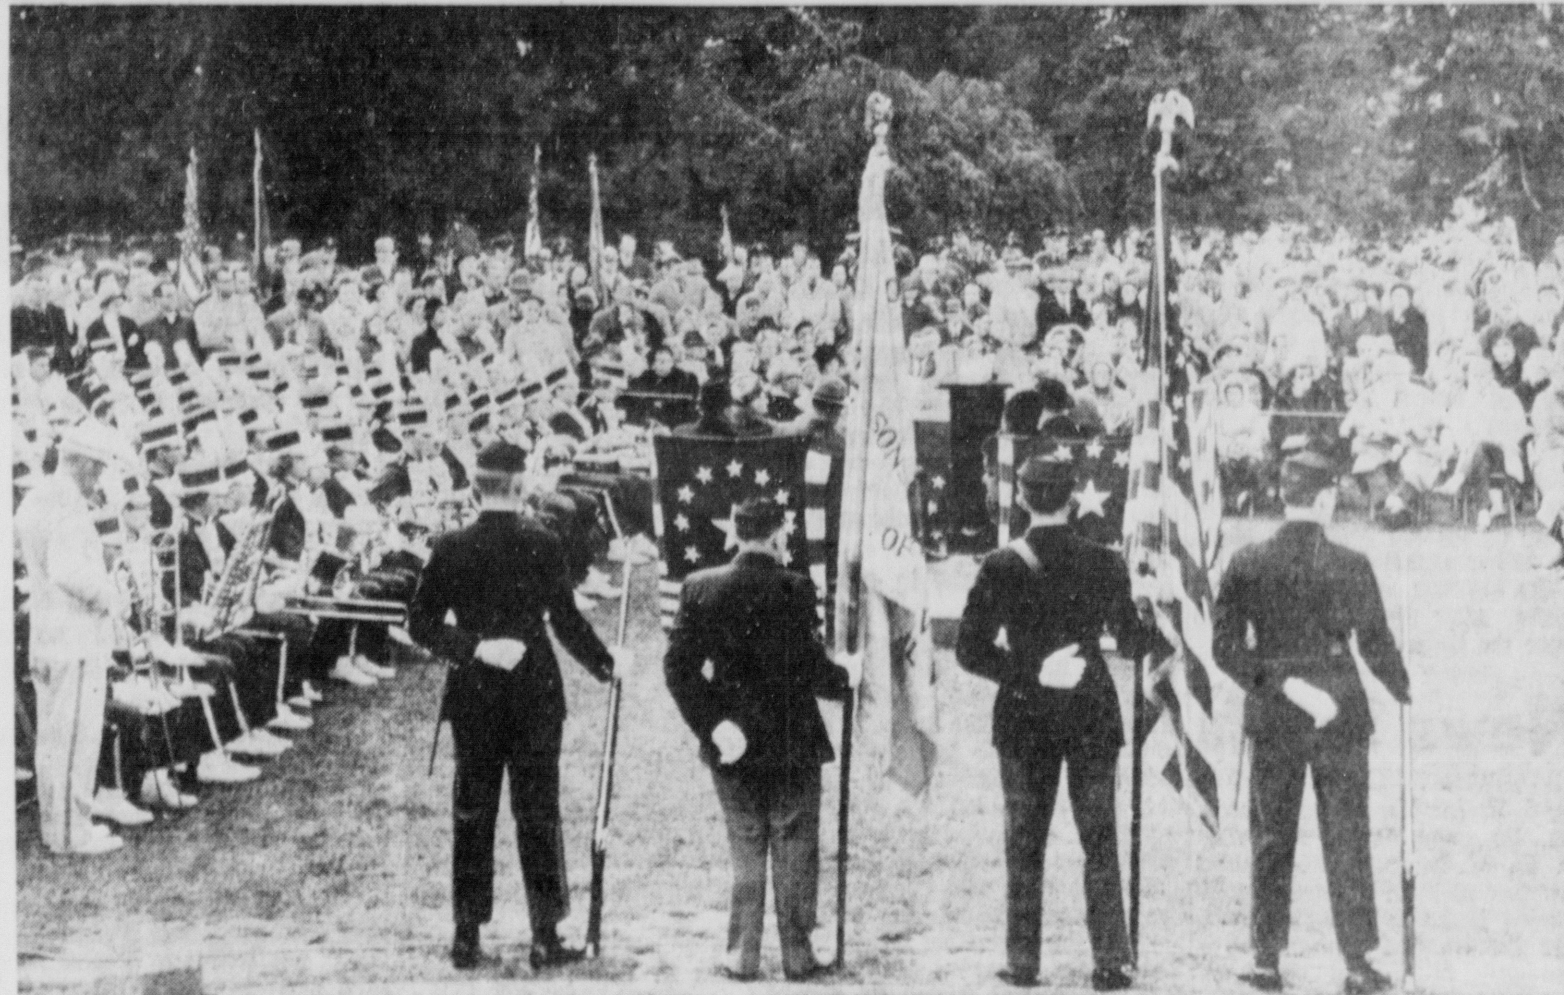

Many companies use photographs for training personnel. For example, Bendix's Eclipse Pioneer Division at Teterboro, N.J., uses a slide viewer synchronized with a tape recorder. The novice worker presses a foot switch to see each operation he must perform, and at the same time hear spoken instructions.

Sears, Roebuck uses photos to speed ordering of the thousands of spare parts in its inventory. Customers use a microfilm projector-viewer to choose the replacement parts.

PROGRESS PICTURES
Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. says 90 per cent of all contracts call for progress pictures.

High-speed photography often is used so the action can be slowed down enough for human observation. Massachusetts Institute of Technology photographs bats in flight with high speed cameras and infrared film to help understand radar and sonar systems.

CAUGHT TWICE ON ONE COUNT

Charles Robinson, 23, Biglerville R. 1, described by state police as a migrant worker, had an unusual weekend as far as driving is concerned.

Saturday afternoon Robinson appeared at the state police barracks in response to an order from one of the officers to bring in his driver's and owner's cards. When he arrived it was found that while he had an owner's card he did not have a Pennsylvania driver's license.

While Robinson was talking to the police a friend who had remained in the car, Lee Daymon Jr., 23, also a migrant laborer of Biglerville R. 1, turned the auto around. Sgt. Joseph Tappe asked Robinson whether Daymon had a driver's license. Robinson answered in the negative and the sergeant walked out to interrogate Daymon.

As a result charges of driving without a license were brought against both before Justice of the Peace John Whitman. They were removed to the county jail, later paid their fines and costs and were released Saturday night.

Sunday night at 9 o'clock state police were called to an auto accident 11 miles west of here on a township road in Franklin Twp. They found a 1948 sedan had been demolished when it ran off the highway and struck a tree near Cashtown. Police found the driver, who was unhurt to be Charles Robinson. They expect to bring another driving without a license charge against him, police said.

Mrs. Marie Robinson, national president of the Daughters of Union Veterans, spoke of the plans of her group to help further higher education through scholarships. The check for $500 had previously been mailed to the college.

Dr. James R. Hartnett, chairman of the social science department of the York Junior College, spoke on "The Making of a President in 1860." He outlined the life of Lincoln from his early efforts to gain an education through his political development as an Illinois legislator and congressman and told of the convention in 1860 which nominated Lincoln.

Arrest Thirteen For Picketing

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Thirteen persons arrested during widespread picketing of restaurants which refuse to serve Negroes went on a hunger strike in advance of their scheduled appearance in court today.

The six whites and seven Negroes were among a group of more than 400 who picketed some 100 restaurants in Baltimore and Annapolis Saturday. They were picked up on trespass charges and taken to Anne Arundel County jail after Antoinette's restaurant in Annapolis refused to serve them.

About 125 persons participating in the campaign traveled from Baltimore to Annapolis Saturday night and picketed at the jail and in front of Gov. Millard Tawes' residence.

MINISTER IS TRYING TO LIVE ON WATER SIPS

BROWNSVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—"I'm just taking each day as it comes."

That was the answer the Rev. Maurice F. McCrackin, 55, of Cincinnati, gave Sunday when asked how long he planned to subsist on a diet of nothing but frequent sips of water.

The United Presbyterian minister who came here to help Negroes was serving out a $50 fine for loitering—plus $11.25 court costs and an $11 jail fee—at the rate of $2 a day. He completed his 21st day of a hunger strike Sunday.

The white minister said he was against what he termed a trumped up charge. The minister, who is treasurer of "Operation Freedom," was arrested after he arrived with a load of clothing for Negroes.

ARREST MINISTER

"Operation Freedom" was formed to help Negro sharecroppers who claimed they were forced out of the area by white landlords and merchants because they registered to vote.

Meanwhile, a Memphis minister the Rev. Alexander Caldwell, was arrested on a charge of speeding after driving here to pick up another fasting crusader, David Henry, 23, of Media, Pa.

Henry was released from jail Saturday when Sheriff S. T. Hunter received money in the mail from Henry's mother paying his $10 fine and $5 court costs.

Henry, described as an associate of the Rev. McCrackin in "Operation Freedom," was arrested on a charge of speeding last Wednesday and also had adopted a passive resistance fast until his release.

The Rev. Caldwell, also a United Presbyterian minister, was freed under $15 bond.

MOVE TO STOP SECESSIONS FROM CONGO

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States, fearful that Antoine Gizenga might withdraw Oriental Province from the Congo, sought today to have the U.N. Security Council call for an end to all secessionist activities in the turbulent country.

U.S. delegates scheduled a meeting with delegates of Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic to urge them to write such a general antiseccession provision into a resolution they introduced last Wednesday. The resolution now calls for an end to secessionist activities only in Katanga Province.

The 11-nation council was to meet this afternoon. The three-nation resolution lacked the votes to pass in its original form and ran the risk of a Soviet veto if changed to suit the United States. OFFER RESOLUTIONS

Besides demanding an end to the Katangan secession proclaimed 16 months ago by President Moise Tshombe, the resolution before the council would:

1. Authorize the secretary-general to use force if necessary to deport foreign mercenaries from the Congo or detain them for Congolese legal action;
2. Ask all countries not to supply war materials to the Congo nor to let such materials pass through their territories except for the U.N. Congo force;
3. Declare determination to help the Congolese central government "maintain law and order and national integrity" and urge all U.N. members to support the Leopoldville government.

Diplomats said the United States might introduce a resolution of its own if the three sponsors did not pick up the U.S. proposals, but the Americans were anxious to avoid this because of the likelihood of a Soviet veto.

WOMAN SEEKS BALLOON MARK

ERICK, Okla. (AP)—A 56-year-old Pennsylvania woman soared aloft Sunday in an attempt to break the women's endurance record for balloon flights.

Officers in Texas and Oklahoma set off in pursuit of Mrs. Alfred Wolfe's gold-colored balloon Sunday night after a farmer reported she had shouted to him that she couldn't land the balloon.

But Sheriff Bill Fitzgerald finally made voice contact with Mrs. Wolfe near Higgins, Tex., Sunday night and said she told him she did not need assistance.

By that time, police cars had been tracking her through clouds over Oklahoma and Texas for six hours and had an Air Force helicopter standing by to rescue her from the balloon. A red blinker light dangles from the balloon, enabling officers to follow its course.

Mrs. Wolfe, of Blue Bell, Pa., is attempting to break the endurance record of 35 hours and 56 seconds held by a Russian woman.

Mrs. Wolfe took off in the wicker basket suspended beneath a 65-foot balloon at 12:47 a.m. Sunday from a private field at Big Spring, Tex. Late Sunday night she had traveled more than 300 miles to near Higgins in the Texas panhandle.

Mrs. Wolfe is a registered pilot and claims to be the only woman in this country holding a registered balloonist license.

Let's Look At The Record

"OLD STONEBOTTOM"

Molotov's Service To Russia Was Great
But Loyalty To Party Is All That Counts

By JIM DAN HILL, Ph.D.
President

Wisconsin State College, Superior
VYACHESLAV MOLOTOV
("Old Stonebottom") American diplomats used to call him is approaching 72. He is back in Moscow for what might well be the final disgrace, banishment, black-out-death!

This reviewer is well aware that the death penalty has been "abolished" in Russia. He also knows equally well that the death penalty is also unconstitutional in Cuba. Why be technical?

KHRUSHCHEV'S "sainted" Lenin, the father of practical, political Communism, recognized no law that he personally conceived to be between him and what he wanted to make of the "Peoples' Dictatorship." To this end he also killed, murdered and executed.

At the side of Lenin's deathbed, Stalin stole the mantle of power that put him in control of the "Peoples' Dictatorship." He long practiced the same policy on a broader base.

If the now vanished Malenkov ever wrote his memoirs and should they ever be published, we most likely will find it of record that Malenkov's loss of power was due to his comparative soft-heartedness. He executed some, but not enough to stay in the Kremlin. In any event, Malenkov overlooked Bulganin, Khrushchev & Co. Nikita has ridden himself of Bulganin and the company of other Stalinists.

As of today, Nikita Khrushchev stands right where Stalin did when he had liquidated all but one of the old Bolsheviks who had been close to, and disciples of, Lenin.

THAT ONE SURVIVOR was and is no other than "Old Stonebottom," himself! Incidentally, "Molotov" is not his right name either. His parents were named Skryabin.

Like all the founding fathers of Russian Communism, young Skryabin took unto himself an alias when he went into the Bolshevik underground at age 19. Back from a two-year exile in Siberia, Molotov, at 22, joined Joseph Stalin, also an alias, in founding an underground, party newspaper in old St. Petersburg.

They named their little, surreptitious sheet "Pravda."

It lives in Moscow today as the massive, official news organ of the Communist party. It is now being used to besmirch the memory of Stalin and to crucify its other founder, Molotov. As young men, they knew no, they were creating an instrument for their own destruction.

BUT "PRAVDA," at first, served them well. It gave them stature in the party. It was their best instrument in consolidating the theft of Lenin's power, 1924. Within two years Stalin had a firm grip on the situation. He made Molotov a member of the Politburo and chairman of the Council of Ministers.

He was thus Stalin's deputy throughout the bloody era of collectivization of agriculture, and the purging of the Red armies, that followed the Trotsky-Buhrhanite trials. Then came the suicidal "confessions" that liquidated hundreds of less known "old Bolsheviks."

MOLOTOV accepted a technical demotion when he took over the Russian Foreign Affairs office from Litvinov, 1929. But it will be in the realm of diplomacy that his name will continue in world history, no matter what Khrushchev may do to erase it.

It was for Molotov's ability to sit still, in one uncomfortable chair, hour after hour, and block each proposal with words, words, and an occasional "neit," that American diplomats nicknamed him "Old Stonebottom."

In truth, Molotov is the father of the Red revolution's diplomacy as surely as Benjamin Franklin was the founder of America's. But he had no part of Franklin's deep regard for integrity.

Molotov double-crossed France and England by teaming up with Hitler for a partition of Poland. Hitler repaid him with a bigger and more ghastly double-cross, the surprise invasion of 1941. Molotov began screaming to former allies for military aid, supplies and a second front. Eventually he got all of them and promised nothing. He then double-crossed the West by insisting to the ignorant Chinese and his own people that Russia had won the war since

PUT AGED MAN IN CAR TRUNK

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An 82-year-old man was found in the trunk of his car Sunday morning where police said he was put by two men who slugged and robbed him of $400 in cash.

Police were searching for the men who helped George Defibaugh of nearby Ross Twp. He was treated at Suburban General Hospital for a scalp cut and released.

Police said Defibaugh spent about five hours in the trunk of the car in his garage and was found by his son John who heard his father moaning.

The son was summoned by his mother after Defibaugh failed to enter the house, police said.

BALDWINVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Hazel H. Dunkle, 65, of Duncan, Pa., and James A. Callen Jr., 27, of Syracuse, were killed Saturday night in a two-car collision on Route 46 near this Syracuse suburb. The woman was a passenger in one of the cars. Callen was riding alone.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Archbishop John J. Krol of Philadelphia has been named to the 16-member Administrative Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. It was announced Sunday. The board transacts all church business between meetings of the conference and programs approved at the annual meeting of the some 200 American bishops of the Roman Catholic Church.

IN THE POSTWAR conferences, Molotov gained for Russia far more than he deserved. In doing so he enslaved millions in the satellite nations. At San Francisco he got for Russia six votes in the U.N. and held America to one vote.

In the light of these achievements for Russia, and with Molotov's being along in years and the last living link with the so-called sainted Lenin, one would think Nikita Khrushchev could forgive and forget. But that is not the way politics is played in Russia. It is not what one has done for his country; it is how he stands with the self-serving Communist Party. Molotov got into just one conspiracy too many; the one that lost.

New Orleans Professor Says South Does Not Have Great Political Leaders

Dr. Rembert W. Patrick, professor of history at the University of Florida, Gainesville, Fla., spoke on "The Confederate Administration" at this morning's session of the Civil War Conference at Gettysburg College. Dr. Charles P. Roland, professor of history at Tulane University, New Orleans, La., furnished the commentary.

Dr. Patrick spoke in part as follows:

"In the hundred years since the Civil War, the South has won many laurels which have eased the pain of complete defeat in that conflict, but she has failed to regain her reputation as the home of great political leaders. The contributions of Southerners to the Declaration of Independence, Revolutionary War, and Constitution; the achievements of men of the South in the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the Federal government during the first half century of the Republic gave southern leaders a political reputation superior to that of representatives from other regions of the United States. Defeat in the Civil War erased the picture of southern political leadership, and the creation of and defense of the undemocratic and un-American caste system painted another of failure and demagoguery.

LIVED ON REPUTATION
"In reality Southerners were living on their political reputations before the firing on Fort Sumter. Freedom of inquiry had given way to restrictive mores which enshrined the 'Peculiar Institution' of slavery and made civil liberties subordinate to its defense. Rather than producing statesmen in the South in the decades before the war, public opinion encouraged the rise of impassioned partisan single-minded politics. By 1860 there was no Washington or Jefferson, or even a Calhoun south of the Mason-Dixon line.

"Southerners, however, elected their best possible representative, Jefferson Davis, to the presidency of the Confederacy. In Secretary of State Judah P. Benjamin, Secretary of War James A. Seddon, Secretary of the Treasury Christopher G. Memminger, Secretary of the Navy Stephen R. Mallory, Postmaster General John

DR. REMBERT W. PATRICK

H. Reagan, and Attorney General Thomas H. Watts, Davis secured a favorable view of the Confederacy with the personnel of cabinets in American history.

"These southern political leaders faced an impossible task in the attempt to win southern independence. The superiority of the North over the South in men and material is too well-known to require repetition. Conditions over which Southerners had no control kept Great Britain and France from recognizing the Confederacy or intervening in her behalf. As a consequence the North, the stronger of the contestants, received the bulk of aid in men and material from abroad. Idealistically the South attempted to stem the trends of history; in an age when Western civilization emphasized human freedom, the South defended slavery; in a period of increasing industrialization, the South clung to an agrarianism based on a controlled labor supply; in an era of nationalism, the South supported division and localism.

"The basic policies of the Davis administration were defensible. The military plan of a defensive offense, the issuance of treasury notes to finance the war, the utilization of southern agriculture, and the appeal for foreign support all possessed merit. Undoubtedly southern leaders made many errors, and Davis compares unfavorably with Lincoln as an executive, but the Confederate leaders secured more from their people than other Americans had given their country in any war. Notwithstanding the excellent leadership of President Lincoln, had the federal and Confederate administrations been exchanged, the results of the war would have been the same — defeat for the South and victory for the North."

SPACE AGE TO IMPROVE BODY OF YOUNGSTER

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Better national health could become one of the dividends from the space age.

If, that is, American youngsters truly want to qualify for future flights as pilots or scientific passengers.

A prime qualification is physical fitness, including normal weight, for space flight is a physical challenge.

And there's no magic formula, wonder vitamin or breakfast food to create a well-conditioned body. Fitness comes through exercise, sports, walking and use of the body.

Whether the dream of becoming astronauts will prompt more U. S. youngsters to greater physical activity remains to be seen.

ALLAY CONCERN
If it does, it could help allay recent concern that many Americans, including youngsters, are living too soft a life for their own good health.

That concern prompted two Presidents — Eisenhower and Kennedy — to summon White House conferences on physical fitness and how to encourage it.

It has many doctors warning that flabbiness and over-stuffing with food are contributing to the high rate of heart attacks among American men and to degenerative diseases coming along too early.

URGENT EARLY START
They urge an early start and lifelong attention to keeping the human machine in good working order. Their advice includes more striding and less riding to school or office, more doing than watching of sports.

There's simply no question that astronauts must be healthy and fit. One major physical strain is the increased gravity exposure of take-off and re-entry of space capsules or spaceships.

Comdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. and fellow astronauts trained for that, explains Dr. Robert Voas, training officer for Project Mercury.

Swinging around on a centrifuge and meeting increased gravity pull, they learned to tense their muscles, to make muscles squeeze down upon blood vessels and thus keep blood from rushing to extremities.

TAKEN IN STRIDE

The astronauts learned to do this almost automatically, to take the gravity strain in stride, while performing other tasks.

The first astronauts, U. S. and Soviet, are trained pilots.

But this won't always be a requirement, says Dr. Voas. The space age presumably will call for scientists, observers, engineers, technicians and explorers to go riding along also for duties on space platforms, the moon or space refueling stations.

No one not in good physical condition need apply.

NO TRESPASSING

All persons are warned not to trespass on the premises of the undersigned with dog, gun or trap for the purpose of taking games in any manner or for fishing or any way injuring or destroying property. All persons violating the laws of the Commonwealth with regard to trespassing on land of the undersigned will be dealt with under the provision of the Act of June 24, 1939, P. L. 872, Section 954.

Dr. Stevens Says "A False Folk Image Of Lincoln" Has Been Given In Many Quarters

The following is the text of the address by Dr. S. K. Stevens, executive director of the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, at the Lincoln Fellowship luncheon in the Hotel Gettysburg Sunday noon:

DR. S. K. STEVENS

"I have chosen to treat Lincoln as a common American because I believe we have been guilty of creating in many quarters a false folk image of Abraham Lincoln.

"I must confess that the Lincoln Memorial leaves me a little cold for this reason. Here we create an image of a man who was full of all the wisdom of the ages and bowed down by the burdens upon his shoulders. Today, no actor upon the stage dares to look like anything other than the Lincoln statue in the Memorial. Did you ever take time to think of Lincoln as he is thus portrayed in Washington, as compared with some of the contemporary photographs of Lincoln and more particularly with the way Lincoln conducted himself in his every day pursuits? I must admit, the comparison in terms of contemporary photographs is not as impressive as it might be in reflecting a difference between the monument and the man because of the horrible way early photographers had of stiffly posing their subjects.

"No person could escape from their clutches without the appearance of being mummified. The real Lincoln, however, as revealed in his everyday life as president, was far from an unreal human being. Indeed, a theory has been advanced that one of the reasons he wanted to come to Gettysburg to assist in dedicating the cemetery was to dispel a report that he had been guilty of levity when he had visited the Antietam battlefield site.

SENSE OF HUMOR

"Contemporary accounts are replete with stories of Lincoln's sense of humor and his ability to lighten a serious moment with a droll story. In fact, he was criticized for not taking his burdens seriously enough. This is a far cry from the picture of the man bowed down in his sorrows which we find in the Lincoln Memorial. I honestly question whether Lincoln would himself like the treatment accorded him in the great national memorial. I am not suggesting, however, that we 'de-Stalinize' the memorial.

"What I should like to do is to review with you briefly a few thoughts about Lincoln the man—the common rather than the uncommon American. I think that such an approach to Lincoln will lead to greater rather than less appreciation of his true greatness.

I would like to review and confirm my concept of Lincoln, not by visiting the Lincoln Memorial, but rather by visiting reconstructed New Salem, Illinois, and the Lincoln home in Springfield. I have heard severe criticism of the reconstruction of New Salem by experts concerned with the niceties of historical restoration. Probably they are correct, but I think the village, as rebuilt, bears a very close general resemblance to the frontier town in Illinois to which Lincoln came as a young man in 1831. It was a village of log cabins, and log utility buildings, only one of which was more than one-story high.

FAMILY WAS POOR

"If you will visit New Salem and let your imagination think of a tall, gangling and very homely youth only 22 years old, who, up to this time had been something of a drifter with a drifter family following the westward moving frontier all the way from Berks County in Pennsylvania into Virginia, across the mountains to Kentucky, and finally into Illinois, you will begin to get a feeling for Lincoln, the common American. If there was anything uncommon about Lincoln's background it was that his family was poorer than the average and perhaps even less literate. Lincoln's mother was probably an entirely illiterate woman, great though her influence may have been upon his character.

"Lincoln lived at New Salem six years — the most formative of his life. Here he broke away from the family tradition of poverty and wandering from clearing to clearing in the wilderness. He tended store he managed the mill, he acted as village postmaster and even as a deputy surveyor — along with a lot of other odd jobs.

"LIKEABLE FELLOW"

"Here he read law in his spare time and polished his study of English grammar. Here he made friends, for he was a likeable fellow. Here he got into military service in the Black Hawk War. Here he was elected to the State Legislature and served four terms. During this period Illinois moved its capital to Springfield and Lincoln came to know this larger Illinois city. In 1837 he left New Salem for the State Capital to practice law. He was still so poor his surveying instruments were attached to pay his debts.

"From here on the Lincoln story becomes brighter. Springfield was the center of Illinois political affairs and Lincoln had an aptitude for getting to know people. People liked this still gaunt and homely young man because he was not only good company, but he had good ideas. In the tradition of the American frontier, he was being recognized as a man of worth who could speak for a lot of people who could not speak for themselves. He was elected to Congress. His law practice grew until he was a corporation lawyer for the Illinois Central. He married into a good family. He had a very nice house for the times and was settled toward becoming a prosperous mid-American lawyer with a flair for politics and office holdings.

NOT A SUPERMAN

"Now I submit this is still a picture of an ordinary man. Lincoln was no superman, nor did people think of him as such. He was an able man, and using to the very best his natural talents for winning friends and influencing people with whom he came into contact. Had it not been for the accident of the powerful national Democratic Party splitting in two, Abraham Lincoln very probably would have made no mark on the pages of American history. When that party did split over the slavery extension issue, there were plenty of ambitious political leaders in the East who were willing to have the lightning strike them as candidates of the new Republican Party for President. Two things over which Lincoln had absolutely no control worked to shove these men to one side, and to make an obscure Illinois lawyer the man whom the lightning would strike.

"One was the fact there were so many prominent easterners such as Seward and Cameron anxious for the nomination that they killed each other off. Men prominent in Washington affairs were vulnerable to attack because their views were well known and their lives were an open book. Furthermore, their supporters were busy fighting each other and ended by blocking each other. The time was ripe for the familiar 'Dark Horse,' a well known feature of American politics right down to the present. Second, 1860 the Midwest had become an integral and important part of the national political system. Indeed, it held the balance of political power between the North and the South. This situation dictated that the dark horse should come from the Middle West.

TURN TO DARK HORSE

"Once nominated, the temper of the times and the split in the Democratic Party dictated the election as President of the dark horse the Republicans selected as their candidate. Can anyone say that Abraham Lincoln had very much to do with becoming President of the United States? One can almost say he was the victim of circumstances. He was no super political leader who emerged before the people as the great leader. He achieved the Presidency in the very common, ordinary and somewhat accidental way in which American democracy conducts its political affairs.

"What about the Lincoln who came to Washington in 1861 and faced the agonizing crisis of disunion? It would be nice to paint a picture of a man with a blue print for action who at once assumed full control of all governmental policy and action. That would be in the great man or Napoleonic tradition of history. Not so with Mr. Lincoln. It is impossible in my time limits to portray the confusion, the battle of personalities, and the contests for power which went on in the administration of Lincoln. These are being set forth with clarity and sharp interpretations in Allan Nevins' four volume history of the Civil War era, two of which already have been published.

WAR WAS ORDEAL

"Much has been written and more will be written during the centennial period, on the ordeal of the American Union which the Civil War represented in our history and on Lincoln. The Civil War was also the ordeal of Abraham Lincoln.

"The more I study this era in our history, the more convinced I become that Lincoln's true greatness in terms of what he did in the years of his Presidency rests upon the fact that he was a common American. Lincoln grew into greatness as the pressures of civil war mounted about him. This is in the American tradition and as it should be, I think we as a nation would rue the day when the 'strong man' with 'all the answers' appears as the solution to our problems.

"What were the elements in Lincoln's character which transformed a common American into a great man? This is not a question easy to answer but I should like to suggest a few. First, and perhaps foremost, among Lincoln's attributes which enabled him to surmount the confusion, the conflicts for power, and the sharply antagonistic personalities contending for power and place all about him, from his inauguration until the very day of his assassination, was his patient tolerance of other men and other views conflicting with or trying to dominate his own judgment. This made him a master of the art of practical politics.

HAD SMALL STAFF

"Lincoln was President at a time when the office was not surrounded by a vast official bureaucracy as it is today. The President had merely a secretary and staff. His office was open at all times to anyone who wanted to take up his time. Lincoln never had even a dependable cabinet to which he could delegate certain responsibility. Rather it was made up of men who tended to hinder whom sought power and advantage at the expense of that of the President. In what other administration in our history could it be a subject of historical consideration as to whether a member of the President's cabinet did not actually conspire in his assassination. Only a man with the greatest of tolerance and patience could have surmounted the swirling, snarling, confusing forces which operated in Washington throughout the years 1861 to 1865.

"Coupled with tolerance was humility. Abraham Lincoln was ever a humble man. He was humble, I think, because he himself appreciated very well the nature of his background and the limitations upon his ability. At no time can one imagine Lincoln assuming the familiar pose of Napoleon or a Hitler. He knew full well that he was a common American and their spokesman, their instrument in time of dire trouble.

FAITH IN PEOPLE

"These virtues alone probably could not have enabled Abraham Lincoln to survive and to grow in stature in those perilous, turbulent years. Lincoln had a paramount ideal before him. As a common American, Abraham Lincoln had an abiding faith in the people, in the basic doctrine of equality of men as it was set forth in the Declaration of Independence. This was a principle not merely applied to the nation created by that Declaration, but to the people of the entire world. At Philadelphia on February 22, 1861, in an impromptu address connected with raising at Independence Hall the flag which bore the star of the new state of Kansas Lincoln said, 'I have never had a feeling politically which did not stem from the Declaration of Independence.' He went on to say, in a vein which reappears in the Gettysburg Address, that the great principle of the Declaration of Independence was not merely the assertion of freedom from England but that sentiment which gave liberty not only to the people of this country, but to all the world, for all future time. In a prophetic note he ended by saying that if the nation could not be saved without giving up that principle 'I would rather be assassinated on the spot than surrender it.'

"I submit to you that this is the Lincoln worth careful study — worth thoughtful study in these days by those who would seek to know the essence of the American ideal. The strutting, petty dictators who at brief intervals cloud the pages of human history with their pragmatic mouthings and succeed from time to time in throwing great fear into the hearts of millions fall into petty insignificance in due time. They become unpleasant memories of the past. Democracy can never hope to match them in their strutting, their mouthings, or their capacity for brief intervals to create fear. Indeed, we should never try to do so.

FACE CHALLENGE

"The essence of the democratic process is such that we fumble and we make mistakes. We put up with what is sometimes not merely vexing, but senseless opposition to sound national policies. I am disturbed today by the growth of some feeling in this country that these processes cannot suffice in meeting the challenges which confront us. There are those who appear to be demanding the strong man approach and using, so help us, the precedent of the minute men of the Revolution. This is the negation of the principles upon which Lincoln based his philosophy of action in national crisis. The Lincoln way is the American way. Lincoln has come down to us as one of the greatest, if not the greatest single figure in our political history, because he was the common American — forged in the fires of a civil war into a greatness he otherwise would have never known."

EAST BERLIN—At the recent

East Berlin firemen's meeting 11

new members were enrolled.

They were John Hunter, William

Frey, Ronald Spangler, Wayne

Wolf, Robert Reeder, Roger Grim,

John Laughman, Daryl Hoffman,

James Brodbeck, Richard Riggs

Jr. and George Riddle. There were 29 members present. Three calls were received during the month. Roy Chronister, Nelson

Thoman and Calvin Lerew were appointed auditors. At the December 12 meeting officers will be elected. President Gary Markley

has asked that members assist the auxiliary in serving the public Thanksgiving Day dinner at 11 o'clock.

A Thanksgiving service will be pressing, cleaning, the laundry and shoemaker.

If it to wear again, clothes should be stowed without delay:

Store hats in a box on a bed of tissue paper . . . shoes, trees inserted, off the floor . . . every garment, except a knit, on a hanger suited to it . . . knits, neatly folded, in a drawer . . .

bags and gloves in plastic envelopes.

To be doubly sure of an ever-ready wardrobe, hang related garments together—group your casual, street and dress clothes.

That puts an end to the eternal treasure hunt. As an answer to the what-to-wear-with puzzle, "rehearse" your accessory plot with a costume before its public debut.

Kochman Cited For Grid Play

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Koch-

man's feat of scoring three touchdowns in Penn State's 34-14 victory over Holy Cross today earned him honors as one of the Associated Press' college football stars for Saturday. He was among 13 players cited from around the nation.

Kochman scored all of his touchdowns in the first half on runs of 13, 4 and 3 yards. Buddy Torris also sparked the Penn State attack which ground out 380 yards, rushing and 98 passing. Torris, playing at fullback for the injured Dave Hayes, scored two touchdowns on runs of 6 and 2 yards in the final period.

In all, Kochman gained 132 yards rushing while Torris collected 144.

POLICE FORCE ASKS LEAVES

WAVERLY, N.Y. (AP)—Seven of the eight members of the village police force have asked for 30-day leaves of absence—to seek new jobs—after the posting of a new work schedule.

The eighth member of the force, Chief A. L. Button, is ill.

The seven asked for leaves, effective Thursday, because they said, they were dissatisfied with the schedule.

Trustee Elmer Merrill, chairman of the Village Board's police committee, said the schedule, which he prepared, was designed to give residents the greatest protection during the hours of maximum risk.

He said the periods were at noon, when traffic was heavy and schools let out, and the hours after midnight.

The Village Board held a special meeting on the leave requests Sunday but no action was taken.
